If the creditor values his security for the purpose of voting, then within twenty-eight days after the proof has been used in voting at a meeting the official receiver or liquidator may require him to give up his security for the benefit of the creditors generally on payment of the value estimated in the proof with an addition of 20 per cent., but the creditor may at any time before being required to give up his security correct the valuation by a new proof and deduct the new value from his debt, but in that case the addition of 20 per cent. will not be made, if the security is required to be given up (u). The rights given to the liquidator by this rule are in addition to those given to him by rule 12 (a) in the second Schedule to the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, and where the liquidator has offered to redeem the security of a creditor under the latter rule the creditor may still apply to amend his proof under rule 13 in the second Schedule to the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (x), and it would seem that nothing short of acceptance by the creditor of the amount tendered by the liquidator will deprive the creditor of his right of amendment, and that probably even that will not be sufficient where the money was accepted under a misapprehension (y). The existence of a subsequent mortgagee who opposes an amendment makes no difference (z).

Before adjudication a proof can, it would seem, be withdrawn without leave and a fresh proof substituted (a), except, perhaps, where the original proof has been used for voting purposes (b), but where a proof has been rejected no fresh proof can be put in, if the rejection was on the merits and not on purely technical grounds (c).

Rule 15 in the second Schedule to the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, substitutes the proceeds of a subsequent realization for the estimate made on a previous valuation (d).

Where a security is redeemed by a liquidator the liquidator as representing the general creditors would seem to step into the shoes of the mortgagee, and subsequent mortgagees will not have their rights accelerated (e). Where one creditor holds different securities for different debts, the various securities and debts are frequently lumped together in his proof; but this, it would seem, in no way alters the rights of the parties, and so the liquidator may redeem or the creditor may require him to redeem any one of the securities (f), and the creditor cannot retain more than 20*s*. in the £ out of one of his securities to make up for any deficiency in the rest (g), or obtain any right of consolidating his securities which apart from the winding-up he would not have had (h).

Where neither section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, nor section 207 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, applies, e.g. where the company is solvent, a secured creditor will be entitled to realize his security and prove for the full amount of his debt, the only limit being that he must not receive more than 20*s*. in the £ in all (i); but where the security had been realized before the

It is submitted that this rule holds good where the Bankruptcy Rules apply if the security is not over the company's own property (n).

PREFERENTIAL DEBTS.

In a winding-up there must be paid in priority to all other debts—

(a) All parochial or other local rates due from the Company at the date fixed by the Act, and having become due and payable within twelve months next before that date, and all assessed taxes, land tax, property or income tax assessed on the Company up to the fifth day of April next before that date, and not exceeding in the whole one year's assessment ;

(b) All wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the Company during four months next before the date fixed by the Act not exceeding fifty pounds ; and

(c) All wages of any workman or labourer not exceeding twenty-five pounds, whether payable for time or for piece work, in respect of services rendered to the Company during two months next before the date fixed by the Act ; but where any labourer in husbandry has entered into a contract for the payment of a portion of his wages in a lump sum at the end of the year of hiring, he will have priority in respect of the whole of such sum, or a part thereof, as the Court may decide to be due under the contract, proportionate to the time of service up to that date ; and

(d) Unless the Company is being wound-up voluntarily merely for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another Company all amounts not exceeding in any individual case £100 due in respect of compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act 1906, the liability wherefore accrued before the date fixed by the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908, but subject to the provisions of section 5 of the Workmen's Compensation Act 1906.

The foregoing debts—

(a) Rank equally among themselves and are to be paid in full, unless the assets are insufficient to meet them, in which case they abate in equal proportions ; and

(b) In the case of a Company registered in England or Ireland, so far as the assets of the Company available for payment of general creditors are insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures under any floating charge created by the Company and are to be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to that charge.

Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs and expenses of the winding-up, the foregoing debts must be discharged forthwith so far as the assets are sufficient to meet them.

In the event of a landlord or other person distraining or having distrained on any goods or effects of the company within three months next before the date of a winding-up order, the debts to which priority is given by the section will be a first charge on the goods or effects so distrained on, or the proceeds of the sale thereof.

But in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person will have the same rights of priority as the person to whom the payment is made.

The date fixed by the Act and above referred to is, in the case of a company ordered to be wound-up compulsorily which has not previously commenced to be wound-up voluntarily, the date of the winding-up order; and in any other case, the date of the commencement of the winding-up (o).

Among debts which under section 209 of the Act are in the distribution of the assets of a company being wound-up to be paid in priority to all other debts will be included all contributions payable by the company under the National Insurance Act, 1911, in respect of employed contributors as defined by that Act, or workmen in an insured trade as defined by that Act, during the four months immediately preceding the commencement of the winding-up, or the winding-up order. These provisions do not apply where the company is being wound-up voluntarily for the purposes of reconstruction or amalgamation with another company (oo), and it would seem that these contributions are not given priority over a floating charge, for they are only given priority in the distribution of the assets of a company (ooo).

In the application to companies within the Stannaries (p) of the provisions of the Act with respect to preferential payments, the following modifications must be made:—

(1) In the case of a clerk or servant of such a Company, the priority with respect to wages and salary given by the Act will be given to the extent of three months only, instead of four months, and will not extend to the principal agent, manager, purser, or secretary:

(2) All wages in relation to the mine of a miner, artizan, or labourer employed in or about the mine, including all earnings by a miner arising from any description of piece or other work, or as a tributer or otherwise, but not exceeding an amount equal to three months wages, will be included amongst the payments which are, under the Act, to be made in priority to other debts:

(3) Wages of any miner, artizan, or labourer unpaid at the commencement of the winding-up, and, subject to the provisions of section five of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, all amounts (not exceeding in any individual case one hundred pounds) due in respect of compensation under that Act payable to a miner or the dependants of a miner the liability wherefore accrued before the commencement of the winding-up, must to the extent aforesaid, be paid by the Liquidator forthwith in priority to all costs, except (in the case of a winding-up by the Court) such costs of and incidental to the making of the winding-up order as in the opinion of the Court have been properly incurred, and to all claims by mortgagees, execution creditors, or any other persons, except the claims of clerks and servants in respect of their wages or salary, and, subject to the above provisions, the Court may, by order, charge the whole or any part of the assets of the Company, in priority to all claims and to all existing mortgages or charges thereon, with the payment of a sum sufficient to discharge such wages and amounts due in respect of compensation, with interest at a rate not exceeding five per cent. per annum, and this charge may be made in favour of any person who is willing to advance the requisite amount or any part thereof; and as soon as such sum has been so advanced such wages and amounts due in respect of compensation must be paid without delay so far as the amount advanced extends and in such order as the Court directs (q).

(4) Payments which will have priority under the National Insurance Act, 1911, will, if payable in respect of a miner, have the same priority as the wages of a miner under section 9 of the Stannaries Act, 1887 (qq).

Section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, introduced the provisions as to preferential payments contained in the various Bankruptcy Acts into the winding-up of an insolvent company (r).

Under the section above set out, where rates are payable in advance, they will have to be paid in full for the quarter during which the winding-up commences or the winding-up order is made (t), where they are not payable in advance they will have to be apportioned down to that date (u). The law apart from this section would appear to be that there will be no priority for rates payable

S. 241 of the Act provides that in such companies contributions of miners, artizans, or labourers for the purpose of a mine club, or accident or sick or benefit fund are not to be deemed to be or to be applied as part of the assets of the company in liquidation of the debts of the company or otherwise, but must be accounted for by the purser or any other person in possession of the fund to the liquidator, and are recoverable by him and must be applied by him in accordance with the rules of the club. If the company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidator or any person claiming to be entitled to any such contributions or fund may apply to the Court for directions or to determine any question arising in the matter in the same manner as if the company were being wound up by the Court.

before a winding-up, and no distress will be allowed for them, moreover, where they are payable in advance and the winding-up commences in the middle of a period there can be no apportionment, and the whole amount will be treated as being payable before the commencement of the winding-up, the occupation of the liquidator being the occupation of the company. With regard to rates payable after the winding-up, on the other hand, distress will be allowed for these as part of the costs of the liquidation, and they must consequently be paid in priority if there has been a beneficial occupation by the liquidator (x). Anything that will be a beneficial occupation for the purposes of the rating acts (y) will also be a beneficial occupation for the purposes of this rule (z). Where a receiver was appointed in a debenture-holder's action and was by the order appointing him not directed to take possession, and a distress was put in for the whole of the parish rates during the half-year in which the appointment was made, it was held that there was no change of occupation, and as there was only a floating charge on the goods distrained on, leave was given in the action to proceed with the distress (a). As a rule the Court will not go into the amount of the assessment where the liquidator has not appealed from it (b), on the other hand, in a somewhat earlier case where a receiver appointed by debenture-holders took possession, it was held that there had been a change of occupation, although the receiver was the agent of the company, and that he was therefore only liable to pay an apportioned part of the rate from the time when he went into possession (c).

A receiver and manager who was appointed by the Court in a debenture-holder's action and directed to take possession was held not entitled to prevent an electric light company from cutting off his supply on the ground that if there had been a change of occupation he was not entitled to be supplied without entering into a fresh contract, and if there had been no change of occupation, he must pay the arrears of the mortgagor company (d). And a receiver and manager originally appointed by the trustees of a trust deed, but afterwards continued by the Court, had no higher rights against a gas company than the mortgagor company had. In this case, under the Act regulating the gas company, the receiver had to show he was an incoming tenant to be entitled to a supply without paying the company's arrears (e).

It has been held that a water company is not entitled to cut off supply because a trustee in bankruptcy has not paid arrears due from the bankrupt, the trustee being an incoming tenant within the meaning of the Acts (f). This decision would, however, probably not be applicable to a liquidator, though it might well be so in the case of a receiver.

Turning to the question of King's Taxes, the Crown is not bound by a statute unless by express mention or necessary implication, and it followed that, at all events, prior to the Judicature Act, 1875, it was not bound by the Companies Acts then in force, and no right of distress or execution or otherwise which it then had was taken away by those Acts. It had also a further prerogative which was likewise untouched, viz. that its right prevailed when in competition with subjects (g). Section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, left the former prerogative, at all events, untouched, though it may have affected the latter (h). The effect of section 209 raises a further question. So far as the order of administration goes, the view taken in Re Galvin (i), viz. that the order will be (1) preferred debts; (2) Crown debts other than those which are preferred by the section; and (3) other debts, would seem to be right. But does the section take away the Crown's remedy by distress execution or otherwise? It was held in Richards v. Overseers of Kidderminster (j) that these provisions only amounted to a direction to the liquidator as to the mode in which the assets in his hands were to be distributed, and that they did not affect persons claiming not in the winding-up, but under securities given by the company. And it was said in another case (k) that where the Crown exercised its prerogative the assets of the company were its assets less that portion of them taken away by the Crown. Under these circumstances it is submitted that this section does not interfere with the remedies of the Crown by way of distress, execution, etc. The prerogative of the Crown in the Colonies would appear to be the same as its prerogative here (l).

In the former case the word "debts" in the expression "in priority to all other debts" was taken to include Crown debts because some of the debts preferred were Crown debts.

The Board of Trade have issued the following regulations and forms as approved by themselves and the Inland Revenue Commissioners.

THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908.

Regulations approved by the Board of Trade and the Commissioners of Inland Revenue as to King's Taxes assessed on Companies wound-up by the Court.

1. Where a winding-up order is made on or after the 1st December in the year of assessment, or the Official Receiver or Liquidator remains in possession of the premises in respect of which King's Taxes are assessed under a winding-up order made prior to the 1st December, until the 1st January next following, the Collector shall be entitled to prove for the said taxes, viz.: the Income Tax (Schedule "A"), Inhabited House Duty and Land Tax, assessed on the Company up to the 5th April next following the date of the winding-up order, in the same manner as if such taxes had become due and payable at the date of the winding-up order, and such proof shall rank for dividend.

2. Where a winding-up order is made prior to the 1st December in the year of assessment, the Inland Revenue authorities will make no claim on the Official Receiver or Liquidator for Income Tax (Schedule "A"), Inhabited House Duty and Land Tax for the year ending 5th April next following the date of the winding-up order, unless the Official Receiver or Liquidator remains in possession of the premises in respect of which the taxes are assessed until the following 1st January.

3. Where the Official Receiver or Liquidator disposes of a business as a going concern, he will allow to the purchaser the proportion of the Income Tax (Schedule "A") and Land Tax for the current year to the date of the completion of the purchase, and the purchaser will become liable to the Inland Revenue authorities for the taxes in question for the whole year.

4. PROVIDED ALWAYS that nothing in these Regulations shall be deemed to interfere with the right of the Crown to enforce payment of Income Tax (Schedule "A") and Land Tax actually due and payable, by distress levied on the property of the Company. These taxes for the year ending 5th April next following the date of the winding-up order should, therefore, be dealt with on the footing of "secured" debts, and be paid by the Official Receiver or Liquidator on demand without any proof on the part of the Collector, if on or after the 1st January in the year of assessment there are on the premises sufficient goods belonging to the Company on which the Collector might levy, and notice of any such claim should be given to the Official Receiver or Liquidator by the Collector forthwith upon the making of the winding-up order. If at such time there are no goods upon which distress can be levied, proof of the debt may be made by the Collector as directed in paragraph 1, and such proof shall, if found correct, be admitted to rank for dividend.

In like manner any Income Tax (Schedule " A ") and Land Tax assessed on the Company up to the 5th April next before the date of the winding-up order should be dealt with as secured debts if there are at the time of the Collector's demand sufficient goods on the premises on which he might levy. If there are no such goods proof of the debt may be made by the Collector, and such proof shall, if found correct, be admitted as a preferential claim in so far as it relates to taxes payable in full under section 209 (1) (a) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and as ranking for dividend for any part thereof not so payable in full.

Where Income Tax is outstanding under Schedules " B," " D " or " E " the Inland Revenue authorities will, on receipt of an affidavit by the Secretary or other officer of the Company, with a certificate by the Official Receiver or Liquidator, setting out that no income taxable under such Schedule has been made, forego all claim to payment of the tax, whether the same is payable in full under section 209 (1) (a) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or otherwise, but the waiver of claim under this Regulation shall not embrace rents, royalties, interest of money, or annuities, or fees, or salaries, from which deductions have been made on account of Income Tax.

In cases where an affidavit by the Secretary or other officer of the Company cannot be obtained, the certificate of the Official Receiver or Liquidator may be accepted as sufficient evidence.

Address.

The question of what persons are clerks, servants, workmen, or labourers, is one which has frequently been raised, but owing to changes in the wording of the different enactments on the subject, the decisions under the old Bankruptcy Acts are not all applicable. Thus the old decisions (m) that the employment must be of a more or less permanent nature and that a mere weekly hiring would not do, founded as they were on the words of the earlier statutes, would appear to be gone (n).

A managing director is not within the statute (o), for he is in no sense a servant. A secretary, on the other hand, will usually be so (p), but not, apparently, where it is not his duty to render the services himself, but rather to provide services or see that they are performed, and he is not bound to give much of his time to the company's business (q). An analytical chemist employed at a fixed salary, who has to attend at fixed hours and is subject to the orders of the company, is a servant (qq). On the one hand, a foreman and overworker of a brickyard engaged by the week on the terms of being paid so much per 1000 bricks, and who did not select but did pay the men, was held to be a workman and not an independent contractor (r). On the other hand, it was held in an old case that there was no debt between a drawer employed by a collier and the person owning and working the colliery (s).

A clerk has been held to be entitled to prove although he was entitled to a share of any profits that might come out of a patent his master was engaged on (t), and in another case (u), although he had lent money to his master, was entitled to an account and had an option of becoming a partner.

A ship's mate has been held to be the servant of a person who was alike part owner of the ship and ship's master (x), and a commercial traveller would appear to be a servant (y), but, on the other hand, a dancing master and a drill sergeant employed by the lesson have been held not to be servants (z), and an accountant who gave up all his time as a book-keeper to a business man was held not to be clerk or servant (a). The wages for which there can be proof under the section must be for services rendered in the four or two months, as the case may be, immediately preceding the date referred to in the section (b).

Commission paid to a commercial traveller will be wages (c), and also sums paid to workmen and calculated on the basis of the total output in the yard (d); where sums have, having regard to the Truck Acts, been improperly deducted, they can be recovered as unpaid wages (e). The position of servants, clerks, and other employees of a company on the making of a compulsory order is that such order operates as a notice of dismissal to them as from the date of the order, and any right they may have to notice runs from that date (f). If the liquidator employs them in the winding-up it may be that a fresh contract for employment by the liquidator on the same terms as the previous employment by the company may be inferred (g), but this will not ordinarily be the case (h). In a voluntary winding up, on the other hand, it has been held the resolution will not have the effect of a notice of dismissal (i).

It would seem, too, that a director or other agent of a company who has an agreement in writing for a fixed term of years with the company will be entitled to prove in a winding-up at all events where it is compulsory (k). Where such a person is paid under the agreement a fixed salary, the usual principle for computing what the right proof will be, is to ascertain what it would cost to purchase an annuity equal to the salary for the unexpired period of the contract due allowance being made for the power of a person who could not previously to the winding-up take other employment, being able to do so (l). Where, however, a definite sum is to be paid on ceasing to employ a person, such sum will be the amount to be proved for (m); whether an employee of a company who is to be paid by commission can prove for loss of commission by reason of the company having ceased to carry on business, would seem to turn on the terms of the contract in each case, but, as a rule, it is submitted that there can be proof for loss of such commission (n). Except under exceptional circumstances (o) there can be no claim for loss of employment where a man is paid by a fixed salary and the employer is willing to continue that salary (p). The fact that bills have been drawn in a foreign currency which has since depreciated will not prevent proof for the sum due in English currency if the bills have not been paid (q). The Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, provides (r) that where any employer has entered into a contract with any insurers in respect of any liability under that Act to any workman, then in the event of the employer, if a company having commenced to be wound up, the rights of the employer against the insurers as respects that liability will, notwithstanding anything in the enactments relating to the winding up of companies, be transferred to and vest in the workman, and upon any such transfer

The section also provides that where the compensation is a weekly payment the amount due in respect thereof shall for the purposes of this provision be taken to be the amount of the lump sum for which the weekly payment could, if redeemable, be redeemed if the employer made an application for that purpose under the first schedule to the Act (i.e. the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906). There is also a provision in the section for the purpose of giving priority in the Stannaries.

the insurers will have the same rights and remedies and be subject to the same liabilities as if they were the employer, but the insurers will not be under any greater liability to the workman than they would have been under to the employer.

If the liability of the insurers to the workman is less than the liability of the employer to the workman, the workman may prove for the balance in the liquidation. This provision does something more than put the workman into the shoes of his employer, it does that, and it also prevents any claim to the fund by the general creditors of the company. The workman will, however, have no higher rights against the insurers than his employer had, and he will be bound to submit to arbitration any claim which it would have been necessary for his employer to submit (s).

ORDINARY UNSECURED DEBTS.

As a general rule, all debts other than secured debts will since the introduction into winding-up of the bankruptcy rules rank pari passu (t). The preferential debts above mentioned form an exception to this rule. Further, no debts whether carrying interest at law or not, will carry interest after the date of the commencement of the winding-up unless there is a surplus (u); where the assets of the company are more than sufficient to pay all moneys due at the date of the winding-up and interest on all such debts as bear interest, such interest will be paid from the date of the commencement of the winding-up, all dividends paid during the course of the winding-up being treated as ordinary payments on account and being applied in the first place in payment of the interest due at the date of such dividend, and the surplus, if any, being applied in reduction of principal (u). No proof will be necessary for interest after the commencement of the winding-up; the creditor, if his debt is one that bears interest, gets it, if there is a surplus, as incidental to his debt (x). With regard to debts which do not bear interest at law some difficulty seems to be introduced by the case of Re Whitaker (y). Apart from the cases where the bankruptcy provisions apply, it would seem to be clear that such debts do not in winding-up bear interest (z), but Re Whitaker (y) decides that where the assets are insufficient to pay all principal moneys and interest, the bankruptcy rules which give interest at 4 per cent. per annum on all debts proved, apply. It was, however, a case which arose in the administration of an insolvent estate and not in the winding-up of an insolvent company, and it is submitted that it has no application to the latter case (a).

The debts which will carry interest at law are (1) those where there is a contract to pay interest including the cases where by the course of dealing between the parties (b) or by mercantile custom (c), a contract to pay interest will be inferred; and (2) cases where a jury could under 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 42, s. 28, allow interest to a creditor. The cases under this section are cases where there is a debt or sum payable at a certain time by virtue of some written instrument (d), and where a demand has been made in writing requiring payment and giving notice to the debtor that interest will be claimed from the date of such demand until payment (e).

Apparently a demand may be made under the section after a company is in liquidation (f). (3) A third case where interest can be proved for if there is a surplus, would be the case of a judgment (g). Where the debt in respect of which the judgment is obtained does not carry interest at 4 per cent., but at some other rate, the question will arise whether the interest will as from the date of the judgment be payable at 4 per cent. or at such other rate. This is a question which will be decided on the construction of the instrument giving the interest: where the covenant for payment of interest is incidental to the covenant for payment of principal moneys it will be merged in the judgment, in other cases it will not (h).

(4) Interest may also be given over and above the value of the goods at the time of the conversion or seizure in all actions of trover or trespass de bonis asportatis and over and above the money recoverable in all actions on policies of assurance (i).

(a) Cp. Re Welton, [1899] 1 Ch. 108; W. W. Duncan & Co., [1905] 1 Ch. 307. The rule would scarcely seem to be one as to "debts provable" within s. 207 of the Act, seeing that, as already stated, no proof for such interest is required.

(i) 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 42, s. 29.

(5) Interest can also be allowed in respect of moneys fraudulently obtained (k). The rate of interest will where it is reserved by contract be the rate reserved by the contract (l). Where it is given under 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 42, the Court has frequently given interest at 5 per cent., but the regular rule would seem to be that interest should be given according to the current rate at the time (m). A surety paying money for a company will be in no worse position than a stranger, and he will be entitled to receive the usual rate of interest even in cases where the debt he guaranteed bore a lower rate of interest (n).

On the other hand a surety who, in the course of a winding-up has paid a debt of the company and interest thereon pursuant to his guarantee cannot recover such interest, unless the assets of the company are more than sufficient to pay all principal moneys due from the company in full, his right is to prove for his liability as it stood at the commencement of the winding-up (o).

The rule as to no interest being payable where there is no surplus, applies not merely in a compulsory winding-up, but also in winding-up subject to supervision (p) and a voluntary winding-up (q). It does not, however, prevent a creditor who has security on property not belonging to the company from paying himself his interest out of that security and proving against the company for the debt (r), and the same principle applies where two insolvent parties are liable to the creditor (s). Further, the holder of a bill cannot be required to give it up until he has been paid principal and interest in full (t). There is, however, apparently one case where future interest can be proved for in spite of the fact that there is no surplus, and that is where the debt carries interest and is not immediately payable at the time of the commencement of the winding-up. In such cases the creditor will prove for the debt as if it were immediately payable, but must deduct a rebate at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum (u) from the time when the dividend was declared to the time when the debt would have become payable according to the terms on which it was contracted, he then proves for future interest at 5 per cent., if that is the rate provided by his contract, or perhaps though there would seem to be some doubt as to this, at a higher rate if his contract allows of a higher rate. If his contract allows of a lower rate only he will only be allowed to prove at such lower rate. The proof for interest and the rebate will extinguish one another if the interest is at the rate of 5 per cent. (x).

(l) This of course assumes that the contract is not merged in a judgment; and see also the Money-lenders Act, 1900. In East of England Banking Co. (1868), 4 Ch. 14, a resolution of directors to raise the rate of interest allowed on the deposits was held not binding because it was not communicated to the depositors and interest was therefore only allowed at the original rate.

CROWN DEBTS.

Crown debts are entitled to priority in a winding-up, at all events after payment of the preferential debts mentioned in the Act (y). It is doubtful whether this has been in any way altered by section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, but, at all events, there has been no statutory alteration in the Crown's prerogative right of issuing process (z). The Crown's prerogative is applicable where any person receives money knowing that such money does or may belong to the Crown (a), and a surety for a Crown debt who has paid the debt of his prinicpal will be entitled to stand in the Crown's shoes (b).

JUDGMENT DEBTS AND VOLUNTARY DEBTS.

Section 207 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, like section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, which it replaced, does not simply deal with the proof of debts (c). It brings into the winding-up of insolvent companies, all rules with regard to debts and liabilities provable which are for the time being in force in bankruptcy. The section, therefore, deprives judgment creditors of the priority which they formerly enjoyed in winding-up (d), and allows voluntary debts to participate with debts for valuable consideration (e).

BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

Bills of Exchange stand on a special footing (e). A holder may prove in the bankruptcies or windings-up of all prior parties, the only limitation being that he cannot receive more than 20*s*. in the £ (f); but if, at the date of proving (g), he has received a dividend in any such bankruptcy or winding-up, he can only prove for the balance due to him.

Payments made after the proof has been filed do not count for this purpose (h). This brings us to the rule in Re Waring (i). By this rule it is laid down that if the drawer of a bill has given security to the acceptor, and both become bankrupt or the affairs of both become subject to some system of compulsory liquidation, the holders of the bills accepted or if the security has been given to meet particular bills, the holders of such bills will be entitled to the benefit of these securities (k), but they will only be entitled to such benefit on the terms of proving for the balance after the security has been realized (l). The rule is fully discussed in Ex parte Dever, Re Suse (No. 2) (m).

If the holder of a bill has proved in the estate of both drawer and acceptor and has received dividends which exceed the value of the security received by the acceptor he will not, in addition, be entitled to the benefit of such security (n). A person who has deposited bills to meet acceptances by a company cannot if those bills have been properly discounted before the winding-up, follow the proceeds if the acceptances are not met (o).

Even apart from section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, it would appear that a person who is entitled to the benefit of a security for the due payment of a bill of exchange which the company has accepted or agreed to accept, can only prove for the difference between the value of the security and the sum due in respect of the bill of exchange if the security to which he is entitled is a security which has been given to the company for the purpose of covering its liability on the bill of exchange (p). But the company cannot require any money that a holder has received in respect of such a security to be set off against the dividends to which the holder is entitled (q).

In winding-up, as in bankruptcy, double proof will not be allowed, and so where the holder of a bill has proved in the winding-up of both the drawer and acceptor, the latter will only be entitled to receive in the winding-up of the former such a sum as with the sum paid to the holder is equal to the dividends paid to the other creditors of the company (r).

The question of when a company can issue a bill of exchange, and who are the persons entitled to bind the company by means of a bill of exchange has already been dealt with (rr). It would appear that where a company has had the benefit of a bill of exchange the holders of the bill will to the extent that they have advanced money of which the company has had the benefit, be entitled to prove for their advances (s). Where an unincorporated company consisting of several firms is being wound-up there can be no proof on a bill drawn by one of the firms and accepted by another unless each of the firms has authorized either the drawer or the acceptor to use its name as part of the name of the whole company (t).

The fact that a bill has been accepted from a third person for a debt of the company will usually not relieve a company from liability until actual payment has been made (u).

Where the same man is secretary of two companies, one of which has indorsed a bill to the other, it would seem that it will be unnecessary for him to give formal notice of dishonour to the indorser, such notice will be presumed where he owes a duty to the indorsee company to give the notice and to the indorser company to accept it (x).

The drawer of a bill who has been called on to pay on the non-acceptance by a company can prove for the expenses of protest for non-payment, but not for the expenses of protest for better security nor for commission charged by his bank for accepting the bill (y).

Where a company has deposited debentures for the purpose of securing the payment of a bill of smaller amount than the debentures, the holder of the bill will, it would seem, not be entitled to prove in the winding-up for an amount in excess of the amount of the bill (z).

A surety for a company will be entitled to prove and is a creditor in the winding-up, even though he has not been called on to pay anything (a).

Where a solicitor has acted for a company before liquidation and a proof is made in a compulsory liquidation for the amount of his bill of costs, the official receiver or liquidator sends such bill of costs to the Registrar of Companies (Winding-up) with a letter asking him to go through the bill and state what is a fair and proper allowance in respect thereof (b). The Registrar does as requested, and either endorses the result on the bill or issues an allocatur in a form similar to that used for allowance of costs but adapted to meet the case. Where such a claim is made in a non-compulsory liquidation, the liquidator can probably tax the bill under the Solicitors Act, 1843 (c), if it has not been delivered more than a year before liquidation (d), but the usual course is to allow him to prove, and in case of dispute to tax the disputed items (e).

PROOF BY LANDLORD OR ASSIGNOR OF LEASE.

The position of a lessor to a company or of a person who has assigned a lease to a company and has received the usual indemnity against non-payment of rent and breaches of covenant is, where the company goes into winding-up, one which is not definitely settled.

In bankruptcy it would appear the landlord or the assignor could prove, and it would be the duty of the trustee to make an estimate of the loss he has suffered, for such loss cannot be said to be incapable of being ascertained seeing that an arbitrator could and would ascertain it if there were a contract for release of liability (f).

In winding-up the earlier cases would seem to establish the right of the lessor or assignor to enter a claim (g), but they would also seem to indicate though perhaps not conclusively, that the liquidator can pay dividends to creditors (h), but cannot distribute the assets of the company among its contributories (i) without setting aside sufficient assets to meet such claim. It was considered doubtful whether the mere entry of such a claim would prevent the company from being dissolved (k).

The fact that the liquidator, unlike the trustee in bankruptcy, cannot disclaim a lease was treated as distinguishing the case from the bankruptcy cases (l).

Since the introduction of the bankruptcy rules as to proof into winding up and the decision in Hardy v. Fothergill (m), the previous decisions on this point have been said to require reconsideration (n). It would appear, however, that where the case is a simple one between a lessor on the one hand and a lessee on the other, the Court will usually, if the lessor is willing to accept a surrender, bring pressure upon a liquidator to make such surrender upon the terms of the lessor being allowed to come in and prove (o). In this connection it is impossible to overlook the case of Hastings Corporation v. Letton (p), where it was held that on the dissolution of a company a lease to it ipso facto terminated, at all events, where the lease had not been previously assigned. But the question remains what, assuming the last-mentioned case to have been wrongly decided, is to happen where the lessor will not accept a surrender of the lease, or where the lessee has assigned or where the question is one of an assignor claiming his right of indemnity? In such a case Vaughan Williams, J., said he could not allow a proof, and could only allow a claim to be entered (q). The learned Judge proceeded on the footing that the landlord could not have both rent and possession, and that Hardy v. Fothergill (r) only applied where there had been disclaimer. It may be mentioned that there had been no disclaimer in Hardy v. Fothergill (r), and that the question is not whether the lessor can have both rent and possession, but whether he can have his rent and compensation for the loss of the extra security given him by the covenant of the original lessee, or whether an assignor can have compensation for the loss of his indemnity: Hardy v. Fothergill (r) would seem almost conclusive that there will be a right of proof for such losses, if the landlord or assignor is willing to come in and prove. Where he was unwilling to do so, but wished simply to enter a claim for the full rent, which was the position taken up by the landlord in New Oriental Bank Corporation (s), the Courts have always felt a difficulty about forcing him to come in and prove. It is submitted, however, that a creditor cannot in such a case have the winding-up kept open for his benefit, that not only will he not be allowed to participate in dividends until he has proved (t), but that where the liquidator has given him notice of his intention to declare a final dividend if he fails to come in and prove, his claim may be expunged (x). A company which is the assignee of land subject to a rent-charge will not be liable to a proof in respect of such rent-charge, where it was not in arrear at the commencement of the winding-up, and the land has not been used by it after (y).

POLICIES OF ASSURANCE.

With regard to claims on policies of assurance which have not matured at the date of the winding-up, it would appear that the assured can continue to pay his premiums during the winding-up, and then when the policy has matured can prove for the amount of the insurance moneys (z).

This course is, however, not always either possible or desirable.

Section 17 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, makes the following provision :—

Where an assurance Company is being wound-up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court or voluntarily the value of a policy of any class or of a liability under such a policy requiring to be valued on such winding-up shall be estimated in manner applicable to policies and liabilities of that class provided by the Sixth Schedule to this Act. The rules in the Sixth and Seventh Schedules to this Act shall be of the same force and may be repealed altered or amended as if they were rules made in pursuance of Section 238 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 and rules may be made under that Section (a) for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act with respect to the winding-up of assurance companies.

The sixth and seventh schedules above referred to contain the following provisions :—

SIXTH SCHEDULE.

RULES FOR VALUING POLICIES AND LIABILITIES.

(A).—As respects Life Policies and Annuities.

Rule for Valuing an Annuity.

An annuity shall be valued according to the tables used by the Company which granted such annuity at the time of granting the same, and where such tables cannot be ascertained or adopted to the satisfaction of the Court, then according to such rate of interest and table of mortality as the Court may direct.

Rule for Valuing a Policy.

The value of the policy is to be the difference between the present value of the reversion in the sum assured according to the contingency upon which it is payable, including any bonus or addition thereto made before the commencement of the winding-up and the present value of the future annual premiums.

In calculating such present values interest is to be assumed at such rate, and the rate of mortality according to such tables as the Court may direct.

The premium to be calculated is to be such premium as according to the said rate of interest and rate of mortality is sufficient to provide for the risk incurred by the office in issuing the policy, exclusive of any addition thereto for office expenses and other charges (b).

(B).—As respects Fire Policies.

Rule for Valuing a Policy.

The value of a current policy shall be such portion of the last premium paid as is proportionate to the unexpired portion of the period in respect of which the premium was paid.

(C).—As respects Accident Policies.

Rule for Valuing a Periodical Payment.

The present value of a periodical payment shall, in the case of total permanent incapacity, be such an amount as would, if invested in the purchase of a life annuity from the National Debt Commissioners through the Post Office Savings Bank, purchase an annuity equal to seventy-five per centum of the annual value of the periodical payment, and, in any other case, shall be such proportion of such amount as may, under the circumstances of the case, be proper.

Rule for Valuing a Policy.

The value of a current policy shall be such portion of the last premium paid as is proportionate to the unexpired portion of the period in respect of which the premium was paid.

(D).—As respects Employers' Liability Policies.

Rule for Valuing a Weekly Payment.

The present value of a weekly payment shall, if the incapacity of the workman in respect of which it is payable is total permanent incapacity, be such an amount as would, if invested in the purchase of an immediate life annuity from the National Debt Commissioners through the Post Office Savings Bank, purchase an annuity for the workman equal to seventy-five per cent. of the annual value of the weekly payment and in any other case shall be such proportion of such amount as may, under the circumstances of the case, be proper.

(b) These rules would appear to adopt tho rule laid down in Lancaster's Case (1872), 14 Eq. 71 n., and not that laid down in Bell's Case (1870), 9 Eq. 706, and Holdich's Case (1872), 14 Eq. 72.

Rule for Valuing a Policy.

The value of a current policy shall be such portion of the last premium paid as is proportionate to the unexpired portion of the period in respect of which the premium was paid, together with, in the case of a policy under which any weekly payment is payable, the present value of that weekly payment.

(E).—As respects Bonds or Certificates.

Rule for Valuing a Policy or Certificate.

The value of a policy or certificate is to be the difference between the present value of the sum assured according to the date at which it is payable, including any bonus or addition thereto, made before the commencement of the winding-up, and the present value of the future annual premiums.

In calculating such present values, interest is to be assumed at such rate as the Court may direct.

The premium to be calculated is to be such premium as, according to the said rate of interest, is sufficient to provide for the sum assured by the policy or certificate, exclusive of any addition thereto for office expenses and other charges.

SEVENTH SCHEDULE.

Where an assurance Company is being wound-up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Liquidator, in the case of all persons appearing by the books of the Company to be entitled to or interested in policies granted by such Company, is to ascertain the value of the liability of the Company to each such person, and give notice of such value to such persons in such manner as the Court may direct, and any person to whom notice is so given shall be bound by the value so ascertained unless he gives notice of his intention to dispute such value in manner and within a time to be prescribed by a rule or order of the Court.

Where notice terminating the contract has been given and has matured prior to winding-up, the Act has no application (c).

It would seem that where a valuation has once been finally made and has become binding under these provisions, a subsequent alteration of circumstances, e.g. arising by the falling in of the life assured in the case of a life policy, will make no difference (d). It will be otherwise, it is thought, where the contingency happens before the valuation has become binding (e).

OTHER DEBTS.

Where damages are sought for a breach of contract which continues during the winding-up it would appear that they may be ascertained at the period when they are capable of being finally estimated, even though that period is subsequent to the winding-up (f).

There can be no proof for the costs of an action for tort in which judgment has not been signed before winding-up (g), and the same rule applies to an unsuccessful action by the company (h).

But where an action is commenced against a company before winding-up and ultimately proving successful results in a debt which is provable in the winding-up, there the costs of the action may be added to the debt and proved for (i), and the same rule prevails in bankruptcy in an action against a promoter for taking secret profits, for the debt in such cases is not unliquidated, and is in respect of a breach of trust (k).

Statute barred debts cannot be proved for (l), but as against a creditor of the company the Statute does not continue to run after a winding-up (m).

A judgment is primâ facie evidence of a debt, but where the surrounding circumstances are suspicious, the creditor may be called on to show there was a good debt (n). Voluntary debts will, however, rank for dividends pari passu with other debts (o).

Sums that have been credited to a company's account at a bank, as part of a fictitious transaction under which no money really passed or was intended to pass cannot be recovered by the company or proved for in the winding-up of the bank (p), but where money has been paid into a company's account for the purpose of giving it fictitious credit, the person who has paid cannot reclaim his money in the winding-up, if he has made no previous claim (q).

Where a company has borrowed moneys which it has no power to borrow the lender's only remedy will be to prove for so much of the moneys as he can show to have been applied in paying off loans which the company had power to contract (r), and this, even though such last-mentioned loans were contracted after the ultra vires borrowing (s). In addition, the lender will be entitled to a lien on securities purchased with his moneys (t), and also to the extent of moneys he could prove for, to a lien on securities deposited to secure his debt (u). In ascertaining how far his moneys have been applied in paying off debts the company has validly contracted, a lender will not be entitled to claim the benefit of the rule in Clayton's Case (1 Mer. 572) (u), and if his moneys have been applied in paying off secured creditors he will not be entitled to the benefit of their security (x). Possibly an ultra vires lender may be entitled to participate in any surplus there may be after all creditors and members have received 20*s.* in the £, but he cannot maintain an action for money had and received (xx).

The rule in bankruptcy which prevents a partner proving in the bankruptcy of his firm in competition with other creditors, would not appear to apply in winding-up, so as to prevent a contributory who is also a creditor of the company, and whose debt is not due to him in his character of member by way of dividends, profits or otherwise (y) from proving for his debt in competition with other creditors and receiving dividends pari passu with them (z), for the company and its individual contributories are separate entities, and moreover, any other conclusion would make section 123 (1) (vii.) of the Act an entirely inoperative and misleading provision (a). The fact that a contributory has bought up debts of the company at a discount, will not prevent his proving for such debts at their full value (b).

PERSONS INDEBTED TO THE ESTATE.

Apart, however, from any rule of set-off there is a rule that a person who is a debtor to a fund, cannot receive any part of such fund without first making good his debt to it (c).

This rule may obviously prevent a contributory who is alike creditor of and debtor to a company from receiving any dividend.

The rule is worked out thus. You first ascertain what dividend the debtor would receive if he had paid his debt in full. If that dividend would be greater than the amount of the debt, he will receive the difference between the two, otherwise he will receive nothing (d).

This rule applies where the debt is statute barred (e), and where the amount of it has not been ascertained (f), it applies where the debtor has assigned the debt due to him (f), unless either such debt results from a contract expressly providing that the resulting debt shall be free in the hands of an assignee from all claims between the company and any person previously entitled to the debt (g), or the company has received notice of the assignment before the debt to it has arisen (h), and it applies where the debtor is an insolvent company in the course of liquidation (i) or the estate of a bankrupt contributory seeking to participate in the surplus assets of the company, without having paid in full all the calls on the shares of the contributory (k).

Where, however, a debt is proved and the person who proves assigns his claim, and the assignee in turn assigns it to a third party, the rule will not be applied as against such third party in respect of moneys recovered from the intermediate assignee by misfeasance proceedings commenced after he has assigned (l).

Even prior to the Judicature Acts, a set off of a liquidated sum was allowed when an action was brought by a company or a proof carried in by a creditor of a company (m). Thus, where a debtor to a company was the holder of bills which had been accepted by the company and had been dishonoured prior to winding-up, he was allowed to set the amount of such bills off against his debt (n), and a man who had been given debentures in consideration of his making certain payments, was to the extent that he had failed to make such payments bound to allow a set-off against his claim on his debentures (o).

Section 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875, now replaced by section 207 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, introduced the law of bankruptcy on this point (p), except, of course, in the case of debts due from contributories as such which, as has already been seen, always have stood and still stand upon an entirely separate footing (pp). Where there is a right of set-off it will be allowed either on proof or in an action (q). Section 38 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, contains the following provisions :—

Where there have been mutual credits mutual debts or other mutual dealings between a debtor against whom a receiving order shall be made under this Act and any other person proving or claiming to prove a debt under such receiving order an account shall be taken of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings and the sum due from the one party shall be set off against any sum due from the other party and the balance of the account and no more shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively ; but a person shall not be entitled under this Section to claim the benefit of any set off against the property of a debtor in any case where he had at the time of giving credit to the debtor notice of an act of bankruptcy committed by the debtor and available against him.

In the case of a company the time when it must be ascertained whether dealings are mutual so as to be capable of set off is the date when the petition is presented if the winding-up is compulsory (r), and in other cases the date of the resolution, extraordinary or special, as the case may be.

Thus debts due from the company cannot be set off against sums due to the liquidator for goods purchased from him or against sums recovered by misfeasance proceedings under section 215 of the Act (s), and a claim in respect of bills drawn in favour of a company and accepted by a creditor of the company after the winding-up cannot be set off against the debt of such creditor (t). Similarly, it has been held, though possibly the decision is since the Judicature Acts a doubtful one, that the value of unmatured policies as arrived at in a winding-up cannot be set off against a debt from a debtor who had become bankrupt (u). On the other hand, where there were at the date of the winding-up certain premiums still payable in respect of a policy which became payable when such premiums had been paid, and they were paid after the winding-up, but before the action which was brought by the company in respect of advances on the policy, the sums payable on such policy were set off against the advances (x). The true rule in these cases would appear to be that though the line must be drawn at the commencement of the winding-up, this is true to the extent of excluding fresh transactions only, and not to the extent of excluding the consequences of previous transactions (y).

Thus, where there was a contract between a person who ultimately became bankrupt and his creditor, that the latter should take over the business of the former on the terms of making certain payments out of any profits there might be, it was held that profits which were earned after a receiving order had been made could be set off against the debt due prior to that date from the bankrupt to his creditor (z), and where specific performance of a contract to sell land was sought it was granted on the terms of a debt due from the bankrupt to the purchaser being set off against the purchase price (a).

On the same principle, where there was a contract of tenancy before bankruptcy and a debt from the landlord to the tenant also then existing, on the landlord executing a deed of inspectorship the tenant was allowed to set off rent including rent which accrued during the bankruptcy (b). In bankruptcy a landlord cannot set off against a claim against him under a valuation clause in the lease, claims for rent which accrued due before the receiving order if the claim under the valuation clause only arose after receiving order, the reason being that the lease has vested in the trustee who is in the same position as any other assignee and the money due under the valuation clause is therefore due to him, and not to the bankrupt (c).

On the winding-up of a company the lease does not, of course, vest in the liquidator, but possibly, should the point arise, it may be argued that as the only right of set-off is given by reference to the Bankruptcy Act, there can be no right of set-off where there is none in bankruptcy (d) ; it is submitted, however, that this is not the right view and that it is importing not merely the bankruptcy rule as to debts provable, but that rule and something more, viz. the rule as to vesting on a bankruptcy, it will be borne in mind that there are other cases where the rule as to set off in bankruptcy is not the same as in winding-up (e). These cases have no application where the lease itself provides for set-off (f). The section relating to set-off would appear to be applicable to all claims which must or may have a tendency to terminate in debts and which are capable of being proved in bankruptcy if they arise out of contract ; it therefore includes claims as well in respect of debts as of damages liquidated or unliquidated (g). Therefore, where a company undertook to pave a street and to keep it in repair for a certain period and went into liquidation before completing the paving, the other party to the contract was held to be entitled to set off damages for breach of the agreement to keep in repair even although the liquidator had completed the paving, and sought priority for the money he had expended in so doing ; but a person who, before winding up, had been given a charge on the interest of the company was allowed priority as to his claim, and there could be no set-off to his detriment (h). Again, where there had been non-delivery of goods under a contract made before winding-up, set-off of damages for failure to deliver was allowed in an action for the price of the goods (i), and where goods had been deposited with an auctioneer for the purpose of being sold, as the authority to sell was not revoked, the auctioneers were allowed to apply the proceeds of sale in satisfaction of their debt (k). With this case there must, however, be contrasted the case of goods deposited with no authority to sell, here there can be no set-off, for the right of the bankrupt is to the goods and not to any money, and his claim is therefore incapable of being converted into a debt (l).

Claims for misrepresentations on the sale of goods have been allowed to be set off against the purchase price of the goods (m), and where rescission owing to misrepresentation by a purchaser is obtained, the damage suffered by the vendor through such misrepresentation must be set off against moneys which have been paid by the purchaser under the contract, and which the vendor must repay owing to the order for rescission (n). A mortgagee who after liquidation has sold the property mortgaged cannot set off a debt due to him from the company against any surplus in his hands on such sale, for there is no mutuality, the surplus being a debt due to the liquidator and not to the company (o).

Further, where money has been deposited with a creditor by the company for some special purpose or on some special trust he cannot retain such money, or even the surplus thereof which remains after performing the special purpose or trust, as a set-off against his debt, unless he can show that the company has consented to his holding the money or surplus for general purposes (p). On somewhat the same principle brokers who have received moneys by way of salvage in respect of losses settled by an underwriter before bankruptcy, cannot at all events where such moneys were received after bankruptcy, claim to set off as against such moneys a debt due to them for other losses which have been insured with the bankrupt (q). The provisions as to set-off apply to secured debts (r).

PROOF OF DEBTS.

The rules with regard to proof, etc., of debts are as follows :—

In a winding-up by the Court every creditor shall prove his debt, unless the Judge in any particular winding-up shall give directions that any creditors or class of creditors shall be admitted without proof (s).

A debt may be proved in any winding-up by delivering or sending through the post an affidavit verifying the debt. In a winding-up by the Court the affidavit shall be so sent to the Official Receiver or, if a Liquidator has been appointed, to the Liquidator; and in any other winding-up the affidavit may be so sent to the Liquidator (t).

An affidavit proving a debt may be made by the creditor himself or by some person authorized by or on behalf of the creditor. If made by a person so authorized, it shall state his authority and means of knowledge (u).

An affidavit proving a debt shall contain or refer to a statement of account showing the particulars of the debt, and shall specify the vouchers, if any, by which the same can be substantiated. The Official Receiver or Liquidator to whom the proof is sent may at any time call for the production of the vouchers (x).

An affidavit proving a debt shall state whether the creditor is or is not a secured creditor (y).

An affidavit proving a debt may in a winding-up by the Court be sworn before an Official Receiver, or Assistant Official Receiver, or any officer of the Board of Trade or any clerk of an Official Receiver duly authorized in writing by the Court or the Board of Trade in that behalf (z).

A creditor shall bear the cost of proving his debt unless the Court otherwise orders (a).

A creditor proving his debt shall deduct therefrom all trade discounts, but he shall not be compelled to deduct any discount, not exceeding five per centum on the net amount of his claim, which he may have agreed to allow for payment in cash (b).

When any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods, and the order or resolution to wind-up is made at any time other than one of those periods, the persons entitled to the rent or payment may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the date of the winding-up order or resolution as if the rent or payment grew due from day to day. Provided that where the Liquidator remains in occupation of premises demised to a Company which is being wound up, nothing herein contained shall prejudice or affect the right of the landlord of such premises to claim payment by the Company, or the Liquidator, of rent during the period of the Company's or the Liquidator's occupation (c).

On any debt or sum certain, payable at a certain time or otherwise, whereon interest is not reserved or agreed for, and which is overdue at the date of the winding-up order or resolution, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding four per centum per annum to that date from the time when the debt or sum was payable, if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, and if payable otherwise, then from the time when a demand in writing has been made, giving notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment (d).

A creditor may prove for a debt not payable at the date of the winding-up order or resolution, as if it were payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting only thereout a rebate of interest at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable according to the terms on which it was contracted (e).

wages by workmen and others employed by the Company, it shall be sufficient if one proof for all such claims is made either by a foreman or by some other person on behalf of all such creditors. Such proof shall have annexed thereto as forming part thereof, a schedule setting forth the names of the workmen and others, and the amounts severally due to them. Any proof made in compliance with this Rule shall have the same effect as if separate proofs had been made by each of the said workmen and others (f).

Where a creditor seeks to prove in respect of a bill of exchange, promissory note, or other negotiable instrument or security on which the Company is liable, such bill of exchange, note, instrument, or security must, subject to any special order of the Court made to the contrary, be produced to the Official Receiver, Chairman of a meeting or Liquidator, as the case may be, and be marked by him before the proof can be admitted either for voting or for any purpose (g).

Where a Liquidator is appointed in a winding-up by the Court, all proofs of debts that have been received by the Official Receiver shall be handed over to the Liquidator, but the Official Receiver shall first make a list of such proofs, and take a receipt thereon from the Liquidator for such proofs (h).

Subject to the provisions of the Act and unless otherwise ordered by the Court, the Liquidator in any winding-up may from time to time fix a certain day, which shall be not less than fourteen days from the date of the notice, on or before which the Creditors of the Company are to prove their debts or claims, or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before such debts are proved, and the Liquidator shall give notice in writing of the day so fixed by advertisement in such newspaper as he shall consider convenient, and in a winding-up by the Court to every person mentioned in the Statement of Affairs as a creditor, and who has not proved his debt, and in any other winding-up to the last known address or place of abode of each person who, to the knowledge of the Liquidator, claims to be a creditor of the Company and whose claim has not been admitted (i).

The Liquidator shall examine every proof of debt lodged with him, and the grounds of the debt, and in writing admit or reject it, in whole or in part, or require further evidence in support of it. If he rejects a proof he shall state in writing to the creditor the grounds of the rejection (k).

If a creditor or contributory is dissatisfied with the decision of the Liquidator in respect of a proof, the Court may, on the application of the creditor or contributory, reverse or vary the decision; but, subject to the power of the Court to extend the time, no application to reverse or vary the decision of the Liquidator in a winding-up by the Court rejecting a proof sent to him by a creditor, or person claiming to be a creditor, shall

If the Liquidator thinks that a proof has been improperly admitted, the Court may, on the application of the Liquidator, after notice to the creditor who made the proof expunge the proof or reduce its amount (m).

The Court may also expunge or reduce a proof upon the application of a creditor or contributory if the Liquidator declines to interfere in the matter (n).

For the purpose of any of his duties in relation to proofs, the Liquidator, in a winding-up by the Court, may administer oaths and take affidavits (o).

In a winding-up by the Court the Official Receiver, before the appointment of a Liquidator, shall have all the powers of a Liquidator with respect to the examination, admission, and rejection of proofs, and any act or decision of his in relation thereto shall be subject to the like appeal (p).

In a winding-up by the Court the Official Receiver, where no other Liquidator is appointed, shall, before payment of a dividend, file all proofs tendered in the winding-up, with a list thereof, distinguishing in such list the proofs which were wholly or partly admitted, and the proofs which were wholly or partly rejected (q).

Every Liquidator in a winding-up by the Court other than the Official Receiver shall on the first day of every month, file with the Registrar a certified list of all proofs, if any, received by him during the month next preceding, distinguishing in such lists the proofs admitted, those rejected, and such as stand over for further consideration; and, in the case of proofs admitted or rejected, he shall cause the proofs to be filed with the Registrar (r).

The Liquidator in a winding-up by the Court, including the Official Receiver when he is Liquidator, shall, within three days after receiving notice from a creditor of his intention to appeal against a decision rejecting a proof, file such proof with the Registrar, with a memorandum thereon of his disallowance thereof (s).

Subject to the power of the Court to extend the time in a winding-up by the Court, the Official Receiver as Liquidator, not later than fourteen days from the latest date specified in the notice of his intention to declare a dividend as the time within which such proofs must be lodged, shall in writing either admit or reject wholly, or in part, every proof lodged with him, or require further evidence in support of it (t).

Subject to the power of the Court to extend the time, the Liquidator in a winding-up by the Court, other than the Official Receiver, within twenty-eight days after receiving a proof, which has not previously been dealt with, shall in writing either admit or reject it wholly or in part, or require further evidence in support of it. Provided that where the Liquidator has given notice of his intention to declare a dividend, he shall within fourteen days after the date mentioned in the notice as the latest

Where a creditor's proof has been admitted the notice of dividend shall be a sufficient notification of the admission (u).

The Official Receiver shall in no case be personally liable for costs in relation to an appeal from his decision rejecting any proof wholly or in part (x). No leave is required to appeal to the Court of Appeal from any decision determining the claim of any creditor (y).

DIVIDENDS IN A WINDING-UP BY THE COURT.

Not more than two months before declaring a dividend the Liquidator in a winding-up by the Court, shall give notice of his intention to do so to the Board of Trade in order that the same may be gazetted, and at the same time to such of the creditors mentioned in the statement of affairs as have not proved their debts. Such notice shall specify the latest date up to which proofs must be lodged, which shall not be less than fourteen days from the date of such notice (yy).

Where any creditor, after the date mentioned in the notice of intention to declare a dividend as the latest date up to which proofs may be lodged, appeals against the decision of the Liquidator rejecting a proof, notice of appeal shall, subject to the power of the Court to extend the time in special cases, be given within seven days from the date of the notice of the decision against which the appeal is made, and the Liquidator may in such case make provision for the dividend upon such proof, and the probable costs of such appeal in the event of the proof being admitted. Where no notice of appeal has been given within the time specified in this Rule, the Liquidator shall exclude all proofs which have been rejected from participation in the dividend.

Immediately after the expiration of the time fixed by this Rule for appealing against the decision of the Liquidator he shall proceed to declare a dividend, and shall give notice to the Board of Trade (in order that the same may be gazetted), and shall also send a notice of dividend to each creditor whose proof has been admitted (yyy).

If it becomes necessary, in the opinion of the Liquidator and the Committee of Inspection, to postpone the declaration of the dividend beyond the limit of two months, the Liquidator shall give a fresh notice of his intention to declare a dividend to the Board of Trade in order that the same may be gazetted; but it shall not be necessary for the Liquidator to give a fresh notice to such of the creditors mentioned in the statement of affairs as have not proved their debts. In all other respects the same procedure shall follow the fresh notice as would have followed the original notice.

Upon the declaration of a dividend the Liquidator shall forthwith transmit to the Board of Trade a list of the proofs filed with the Registrar under Rule 110, which list shall be in the Form 68 or 69 in the Appendix as the case may be (yyyy). If the winding-up is in a Court other than the High Court the list shall on payment of the prescribed fee be examined by the Registrar, with the proofs tendered for filing and if found correct shall be certified by the Registrar. If the winding-up is in the High Court the Liquidator shall, if so required by the Board of Trade, transmit to the Board of Trade office copies of all lists of proofs filed by him up to the date of the declaration of the dividend.

Dividends may at the request and risk of the person to whom they are payable be transmitted to him by post.

If a person to whom dividends are payable desires that they shall be paid to some other person he may lodge with the Liquidator a document in the Form 72 which shall be a sufficient authority for payment of the dividend to the person therein named (z).

A liquidator cannot, however, transmit a dividend to the executors of a person who dies domiciled abroad until the will has been proved here and an English probate has been produced to him (a).

REGULATIONS AS TO PAYMENT OF DIVIDENDS ISSUED BY THE BOARD OF TRADE UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF RULE 215 OF THE COMPANIES (WINDING-UP) RULES, 1909.

11. Payment of Dividends. The payment of dividends will in every instance, except where a Special Bank Account has been authorized, be made by cheques on the Bank of England, or money orders, which will be prepared by the Board of Trade on the application of the Liquidator, and will be transmitted to him for distribution amongst the Creditors. The application must be in the prescribed form (No. 68), and must be certified by the Registrar of the Court, if the proceedings are in a County Court and by the Liquidator if the proceedings are in the High Court, and in the latter case must be accompanied by office copies of the lists of proofs filed (Rule 150 (5)). The Board of Trade will require ten days' notice to enable them to prepare the cheques or money orders for dividends. Considerable inconvenience and increased labour has been caused by Liquidators transmitting imperfect and inaccurate lists of Creditors, and the Board of Trade request that great care may be exercised in the preparation of them, and that in all cases of payment to executors, trustees, representative officials, &c., the name or names should be inserted in the list.

The creditors in the lists should be numbered consecutively, so that for the purpose of identification corresponding numbers may be affixed to the cheques and money orders.

The total amount of the dividend payable should be charged in the cash book in one sum. If the dividend has been paid by cheques on the Companies' Liquidation Account, the Liquidator on the expiration of six months from the date of issue, or on application for his release, if that event occurs earlier, should return any cheques remaining in hand to the Accountant-General to the Board of Trade.

If the dividend is paid through a Special Bank, the Liquidator should, upon the declaration of the dividend, forward to the Comptroller of the

The Liquidator will then be furnished with a Receivable Order for payment into the Bank of England of the amount of the dividends unclaimed. Under no circumstances should unclaimed dividends be credited to the Estate without the previous sanction of the Comptroller.

III. RIGHTS OF CONTRIBUTORIES.

Turning to the rights of contributories inter se, when all the costs, charges, and expenses of the liquidation and all the debts of the company have been paid, the duty of the liquidator is to adjust these rights (m), moreover, any provision contained in the articles for the purpose of avoiding such adjustment, and providing that shares shall not be called up to their full amount, even though limited to the case where calls are not necessary for payment of debts is void (n). Apart from any special provision in the articles the rule is that the property of the company, including its uncalled capital (o), is, if all the shares are of equal nominal value, divisible among the contributories as follows: that is to say (1) if such property is not sufficient to repay to the contributories the amounts paid up on their shares, then it will be divided among them so that the loss is borne by the shareholders in proportion to the number of shares held by them respectively (p); (2) if, on the other hand, such property is more than sufficient to repay to all shareholders the amounts paid up on their shares, the surplus after making such payments will be divided among the shareholders in proportion to the number of shares held by them respectively (q). In other words, every shareholder is entitled to a proportionate amount of the capital of the company, and therefore also to a proportionate part of the assets (r). Where the shares are of unequal nominal value the loss or the surplus, as the case may be, will be borne rateably or paid rateably in proportion to the nominal amount of the shares, or, in other words, if there are £5 and £1 shares, a £5 share will count as though it was five £1 shares (s). The same rules apply to unlimited companies which have a share capital (t). If shares have been issued at a premium the holder's rights will be regulated by the nominal amount of the shares alone, and no regard will be had to the premium paid (t). If a member becomes bankrupt and proof is made for the balance of his liability on his shares the shares will not count as fully paid if less than 20*s*. in the £ has been paid, and he will have no rights on an adjustment till the other members have been repaid such a sum as will make the amounts paid on their shares equal to the amounts actually paid on the bankrupt's shares (u). Amounts paid up in advance of calls will be entitled to payment in priority to other amounts paid up on shares, and if they have been paid up, as will usually be the case, on the footing that interest is to be paid on them until actually called up, such interest will continue to run during the winding-up until a call or repayment is made (x).

(m) S. 170 of the Act provides that "the Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto." See also s. 186 (1): Anglesea Colliery Co. (1866), 1 Ch. 555. See infra, pp. 1259 and 1260, for form of notice of return to contributories and order as to distribution.

The principle was recognized, though in the special circumstances not applied in Holyford Mining Co. (1869), Ir. R. 3 Eq. 208. It is thought that Eclipse Gold Mining Co. (1874), 17 Eq. 490, was wrongly decided.

It is, however, competent for a company by apt provisions in its articles to vary the ordinary rules as to adjustment (y), and articles do, in fact, usually provide that losses are to be borne in proportion to amounts paid up on shares at the date of the winding-up, and that a surplus is to be distributed in a like manner. Various questions have arisen on articles of this nature. It would appear that the expression "surplus assets" which not infrequently occurs in such articles will always include uncalled capital (z), but it may refer to the surplus remaining after payment of the costs of liquidation and the debts of the company, and this is its usual meaning (a), or to the surplus remaining after paying these costs and debts and the amounts paid up on the shares (b). Light will sometimes be thrown on the meaning by articles regulating the distribution of profits: thus, where one article provided that after payment of a certain dividend on the ordinary shares the surplus should be divided among the ordinary and preference shares in certain proportions and the surplus assets were to be divided in like proportions it was held that the expression "surplus assets" must mean something in the nature of profits, and that such assets could therefore only arise after payment of the amounts paid on the shares (c). Another expression which frequently occurs in these articles is "the amount paid up on their shares." This expression will, apart from context, mean the amount paid up either before or during the winding-up (d). As a result of these decisions it was held that by an article which provided that on a winding-up if the surplus assets should be insufficient to repay the whole of the paid-up capital such surplus assets should be distributed among the members so that the loss should be borne by members in proportion to the capital paid on the shares held by them respectively at the commencement of the winding-up, but if there should be more than sufficient to repay the whole of the paid up capital the excess should be distributed among the members in proportion to the capital paid on the shares held by them respectively at the commencement of the winding-up, the rule in Birch v. Cropper (e) was excluded (f), but the rule in Ex parte Maude (g) was not (h). It is, therefore, more usual in both cases to provide that the proportion shall be according to the amount paid up at the commencement of the winding-up, and so both rules are excluded.

The fact that shares are entitled to a preferential dividend is no indication that they are also entitled to priority on a return of capital (i), and where shares are entitled to priority on a return of so where there are two classes of shares, and the mode of distribution is not based on either the nominal amount of or the amount paid up on the shares: Ramel Syndicate, [1911] 1 Ch. 749.

(c) New Transvaal Co., [1896] 2 Ch. 750; Ramel Syndicate, [1911] 1 Ch. 749. The same conclusion was come to where the expression was "the surplus assets available for distribution among the holders of the shares": Peabody Gold Mining Co., [1897] W. N. 170.

capital they will in the absence of anything to the contrary in the articles also be entitled to share in any surplus which remains after repayment of all amounts paid up on all the shares (k). A provision that interest shall be paid until repayment will be given effect to even though it is mentioned in the memorandum only, and the other rights conferred on the shares are mentioned in both memorandum and articles (k). Sometimes there is a provision that all arrears of dividends on preference shares shall be paid out of the assets available for distribution, such a provision will not entitle preference shareholders to dividends where there are no profits which are available for their dividend, for it does not alter the fund which they must look to for their dividend, but if there are profits the arrears will be payable notwithstanding the fact that no dividend was declared while the company was a going concern (l). The expression "profits" when used in regard to a company in liquidation, means any increase shown in the assets of the company (after allowing for capital introduced or withdrawn) at a later date as compared with an earlier date (m). It will not include profits made in the course of a winding-up (n), but it will include profits made before winding-up but not realized till afterwards, and any excess which the assets of a company show on realization over the value at which they have been estimated in the balance-sheets of the company, and assets which have been treated as without value in the profit and loss accounts, and prove to have a value on realization (m). It will also include any funds which have been carried to reserve out of profits to meet depreciation or insurance (o), or the fall in the value of securities (p), or for any other purpose, where such funds have not been required for such purposes or in the case of a depreciation of securities where the securities have subsequently risen to their original value, unless, indeed, such funds have been capitalized, which in the case of limited companies which can increase their capital, can only be done by issuing a share dividend under an article authorizing such a course (q). A sum arising from the sale of the goodwill of a business will not be profits, such a sum is an alternative to profits, and paid for the renunciation of future profits (r).

Except in very exceptional cases (s), contributories are not interested in whether there are or are not profits, for they will usually only be entitled to participate in profits qua profits where a dividend has been declared (t), and while they can claim a dividend which was declared on a bonâ fide but mistaken estimate immediately prior to winding-up, even after such estimate has, as the result of realization, proved to be excessive (u), they cannot usually claim a dividend out of profits where no dividend has been declared prior to winding-up (t).

The question of whether there are or are not profits does, however, become one of great importance where there are holders of income bonds, or directors who are entitled to be paid a commission on any profits that have been earned or other persons having similar rights. Such persons are not creditors of the company in a proper sense, they are persons entitled to be paid out of a particular fund, viz. profits, which, subject to dividends being declared and to the rights of the persons so entitled, belongs to the members (x), and as their rights rarely, if ever, depend on the declaration of a dividend, they are interested in making out that the profits are as large as possible. Except with the consent of all contributories, no part of the assets of a company may on a winding-up be applied in giving gratuities to servants (y), but the rights of contributories on a winding-up may be varied, if all the contributories agree, and such an agreement will sometimes be inferred if all acquiesce in the variation for a considerable period (z), but such an agreement will not be inferred in a reconstruction where the scheme is silent as to the mode of distribution, and the resolution provides for distribution in manner provided by the scheme, even if a circular has been issued before the passing of the resolution stating that the assets to be acquired will be divided in a certain manner, which is not in accordance with the rights of the members (a). Fellows of a society who have certain rights of using a building belonging to the society will not be entitled to compensation on a winding-up (b).

It would appear to be beyond the scope of this work to consider the rights of the contributories of the various companies and societies which can be wound-up under the Act (c).

One word may, however, be said as to building societies, friendly societies, and industrial societies. The assets of such societies are not distributed according to the rules that govern commercial companies (d), each case would appear to be governed by its rules (e), but so far as one can speak generally, it would appear that apart from rules, the assets of a building society which are available will be distributed among the members partly according to their contributions, partly according to the length of their term of membership, or in other words, according to their interests in the capital and the profits (f).

Withdrawing members who have given notice of withdrawal before winding-up and the representatives of deceased members will have priority, because they have ceased to be members (g).

The funds of friendly societies and industrial and provident societies are distributed in a similar manner (h), but if there is more than sufficient to satisfy all claims for return of contributions and profits, and the rules contain no provision as to the manner in which a surplus is to be applied, any surplus will go to the Crown as bonâ vacantia (i). CHAPTER XIV.

Voluntary Winding-up, including Winding-up under Supervision.

Hitherto the only sort of liquidation which has been considered is compulsory liquidation. There is, however, another sort of liquidation, viz. voluntary liquidation, which includes, (1) what may be called ordinary voluntary winding-up; and (2) voluntary winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court (a).

Voluntary liquidation is not applicable to all companies which can be wound up compulsorily.

It is applicable to companies registered under the Act of 1862 or the Companies (Consolidation) Act, it is also applicable to companies registered under the Act of 1856, whether also registered under the later Acts or not (b), to societies registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1893 (c), and to building societies at all events as regards winding-up subject to supervision, and probably also as regards purely voluntary winding-up (d). It does not apply to friendly societies (e) or to companies or societies which can be wound-up as unregistered companies (f).

A company may be wound-up voluntarily—

(1) When the period (if any) fixed for the duration of the Company by the articles expires, or the event (if any) occurs, on the occurrence of which the articles provide that the Company is to be dissolved, and the Company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the Company to be wound-up voluntarily:

(2) If the Company resolves by special resolution that the Company be wound-up voluntarily:

(a) As to these being simply variations of one sort of liquidation, see the judgment of Lindley, L.J., in Taurine Co. (1883), 25 C. D. 118.

(3) If the Company resolves by extraordinary resolution to the effect that it cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business and that it is advisable to wind-up (g).

When a company has by special or extraordinary resolution resolved to wind-up voluntarily, the Court may, on application by petition, make an order that the voluntary winding-up shall continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories, or others to apply to the Court, and generally on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks just (h).

A voluntary winding-up is deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution authorizing the winding-up (i), i.e in the case of a special resolution at the time of the confirmatory resolution (k). This is also the time when a voluntary winding-up under supervision commences even where a petition has been presented and a provisional liquidator has been appointed at an earlier date (l). But for certain purposes a winding-up subject to supervision starts at a different date, thus, the fraudulent preference section of the Act makes the date of the presentation of the petition the essential date (m), and section 213 of the Act, which relates to companies registered in Scotland looks to the same date. The Court will rarely, if ever, restrain shareholders from passing resolutions for voluntary liquidation (n).

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN ORDINARY VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP AND WINDING-UP SUBJECT TO SUPERVISION.

Ordinarily speaking, the distinctions between an ordinary voluntary winding-up and a voluntary winding-up subject to supervision (nn) are as follows :—

(1) A petition for a winding-up subject to supervision is for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over actions to be deemed to be a petition for winding-up by the Court (o), and on a winding-up subject to supervision, as in a compulsory winding-up, no proceeding may be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the Court and subject to such terms as the Court imposes (p), and attachments, sequestrations, distresses, or executions

D. 465, decides anything contrary to those cases, it must be taken as being wrong.

(nn) Except where otherwise provided the provisions of the Act as to winding-up apply to all kinds of winding-up, Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 122.

put into force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding-up are void to all intents (q). An ordinary voluntary liquidation does not have this effect, but where a company is being wound-up voluntarily the liquidator or any contributory or creditor (r) may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the winding-up, or to exercise, as respects the enforcing of calls, or any other matter, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court. On such an application the Court, if satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partially to the application on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit, or may make such other order on the application as the Court thinks just (s).

Acting under this section the Court will usually stay executions and other processes of a like nature in the same way, and on the same principles as it would in a compulsory winding-up or a liquidation under a supervision order (t), and this, though the sheriff has seized before the application to stay is made, as long as he has not sold and was not in possession at the time of the commencement of the winding-up (u). With regard to staying actions in a winding-up, there would appear to be this distinction between an application under section 193 in a purely voluntary winding-up, and an application where there has been a compulsory or supervision order, viz. that in the former case the onus is on the liquidator to show that the action should be stayed, at all events where he denies the claim in toto, while in the latter case the onus is on the person desiring to

(q) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 211. As stated, when dealing with compulsory liquidation this section must be read in connection with s. 142, and the Court can consequently give leave to proceed with an execution, etc. See also as to companies registered in Scotland, s. 213 of the Act, and see supra, pp. 890 et seq.

(r) Cp. New de Kaap, Ltd., [1908] 9 Ch. 589. Prior to the Act of 1900, a creditor had no power to apply to the Court in a purely voluntary winding-up. When that Act came into force WRIGHT, J., said that there was no longer any real advantage in making a supervision order, and that he would in future not be disposed to allow the costs of such an order unless sufficient reason for making the order were shown: Practice Note, [1901] W. N. 14. It is thought, however, that this note does not represent the existing practice.

(s) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 193.

D. 486; Roundwood Colliery Co., [1897] 1 Ch. 373; Sablonière Hotel Co. (1866), 3 Eq. 74. In Shackell & Co. v. Chorlton and Sons, [1895] 1 Ch. 378, a landlord who was not allowed to distrain was not given his costs, though not ordered to pay the liquidator's costs.

(u) Westbury v. Twigg, [1892] 1 Q. B. 77, not following the decision of ROMILLY, M.R., in Hull Forge Co. (1867), 36 L. J. (CH.) 337.

bring or proceed with the action (x). Where, however, the debt is to some extent admitted, and the question is merely one of amount which can conveniently be decided by proof (y), there the action will almost invariably be stayed, and the Court can and will in a proper case order the plaintiff in the action to pay the costs of the application (z). Of course, none of these remarks apply to cases where leave to proceed would be given in a compulsory liquidation, in such cases no stay will be given in a purely voluntary winding-up (a). Applications to stay proceedings in a pending action, including executions on a judgment obtained, must be made to the division of the High Court where the action is pending (b). If the winding-up is in the High Court and proceedings are pending in an inferior Court it would appear clear that the Court, having jurisdiction to wind-up the company, can stay them, as section 24 subsection 5 of the Judicature Act, 1873 does not apply.

(2) The second important distinction between an ordinary winding-up and a winding-up subject to supervision lies in the fact that a supervision order (c) always directs the liquidator to file with the Registrar once every three months (d) a report as to the position of and the progress made with the winding-up and the progress made with realization, and also directs all costs to be taxed (e). In Scotland the liquidator must submit the whole of his accounts, whether relating to legal proceedings or not, to the Court (f).

(3) In a voluntary winding-up every transfer of shares except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidator, and every alteration in the status of members of the company made after the commencement of the winding-up, is void. In a compulsory winding-up or a winding-up subject to supervision not only alterations of status and transfers but also all dispositions of property including things in action made after the commencement of the winding-up are void unless the Court otherwise orders (g).

(4) In the case of companies registered in Scotland certain proceedings are avoided in the case of a winding-up by or under the supervision of the Court, but not in the case of a purely voluntary winding-up (h).

(5) With regard to the sanctioning of a general scheme of liquidation under section 214 of the Act the sanction required in the case of a winding-up by the Court in England is that of the Court or the committee of inspection. In the case of a winding-up under supervision or a winding-up by the Court in Scotland or Ireland the sanction of the Court must be obtained, in the case of an ordinary voluntary winding-up an extraordinary resolution must be passed (i).

(6) In a compulsory liquidation or a liquidation under supervision the Court may of its own motion or on the application of any person interested direct the prosecution of directors and others at the expense of the assets, in a voluntary liquidation a liquidator may prosecute at the expense of the assets if he has obtained the previous sanction of the Court (k).

(7) Where a company is about to be dissolved its books will be disposed of as the Court directs in the case of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, and in the case of a voluntary winding-up as the company by extraordinary resolution directs (l).

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN COMPULSORY AND VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP.

The main distinctions between a voluntary winding-up whether under supervision or not and a compulsory winding-up are that in the former the official receiver is never liquidator and the liquidator is not usually appointed by the Court, there is usually no committee of inspection (m), no statement of affairs, no report or further report by the official receiver, and, most important of all, there can be no public examination.

The compulsory liquidation provisions as to meetings of creditors, information to be supplied to the official receiver, the payments to be made to the Bank of England, the audit of liquidator's accounts under section 155 of the Act (mm), the books to be kept by and the release of a liquidator, the control of the Board of Trade and the appointment of a special manager are also excluded in the case of a supervision order by section 203 (n) of the Act, which contains the following provisions :—

(g) Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 205. See supra, pp. 887 et seq.

(h) Ibid., s. 213.

(i) Ibid., s. 214. In compromises or arrangements under s. 120 of the Act the sanction of the Court is always necessary.

(k) Ibid., s. 217.

(l) Ibid., s. 222.

(m) See now, however, s. 188 of the Act, referred to post, pp. 1272 and 1273; and see also Watson and Sons, [1891] 2 Ch. 55.

(mm) In a voluntary liquidation the Board of Trade audits the liquidator's accounts under s. 224 of the Act.

(n) These matters are also excluded in a purely voluntary

Where an order is made for a winding-up subject to supervision, the Liquidator may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all his powers, without the sanction or intervention of the Court, in the same manner as if the Company were being wound up altogether voluntarily.

A winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court is not a winding-up by the Court for the purpose of the following provisions of this Act, namely, those contained in sections one hundred and forty-seven, one hundred and forty-eight, one hundred and forty-nine, except sub-section (10), one hundred and fifty-two, one hundred and fifty-three, one hundred and fifty-four, one hundred and fifty-five, one hundred and fifty-six, one hundred and fifty-seven, one hundred and fifty-eight, one hundred and fifty-nine, one hundred and sixty, one hundred and sixty one, one hundred and sixty-two, one hundred and seventy-three, and one hundred and seventy-five, but, subject as aforesaid, an order for a winding-up subject to supervision shall for all purposes, including the staying of actions and other proceedings, the making and enforcement of calls, the power in Scotland to remit the winding-up to a permanent Lord Ordinary and the exercise of all other powers be deemed to be an order for winding-up by the Court.

It has been held that the power of transferring proceedings given by rule 42 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules and by O. 49, r. 5, R. S. C. applies to a supervision case (o). The application being by summons before the winding-up Judge. The consent of the Lord Chancellor is apparently necessary in such cases.

The Court can in a proper case on making a supervision order give such directions as will render a winding-up subject to supervision more akin to a winding-up by the Court than to an ordinary winding-up subject to supervision (p). It has thus in effect appointed a committee of inspection (q) or advisory committee, and has directed the liquidator to "conduct the winding-up of the company subject to such restrictions as an official liquidator would in a compulsory winding-up be subject to except so far as the Court may upon an winding-up, and it is thought that all the provisions of the Act with regard to a compulsory liquidation which are by this section made applicable to a winding-up subject to supervision except the automatic stay of proceedings, will also be applicable in a purely voluntary winding-up.

It will now usually not make such an order until the result of the meeting under s. 188 is known, see infra, p. 1299, and will then only make such an order as to a committee of inspection as is usual under that section; see infra, pp. 1319 and 1320, and order in Wyvern Kid Co., 0050 of 1912. application for that purpose, modify or dispense with such restrictions in any case or class of cases" (r). There can, however, never be a public examination in a supervision case, as the official receiver cannot make a further report. A private examination may, however, and is sometimes heard in open Court (rr). The Court can in like manner by orders made on applications under section 193 of the Act, in effect alter a purely voluntary winding-up into something very like a winding-up under supervision (s). All applications to the Court in a purely voluntary winding-up must be made under this section (t). Such applications must usually be made by summons (u), and no doubt the Court has under the section a wider discretion than it would have under a compulsory or supervision order, for it must be "satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of the power will be just and beneficial" (x), but the Court has declined to cut down the effect of the section, and it can be brought into play on any question which fairly arises in the course of a winding-up (y). Thus, under it misfeasance proceedings have been taken (z), and orders for production of documents under section 174 have been made (a). An inspection of books under section 221 can be ordered by virtue of this section (b), the rights of an alleged dissentient have been determined (y), and the winding-up of a company has been stayed (c), and also, as has been shown, a stay has been ordered of actions and executions against a company in voluntary winding-up. A Scotch Court has under this section approved of the manner in which the liquidator has dealt with all proofs sent in in the liquidation, the application being served on all persons who had questioned any decision of the liquidators with regard to a proof (cc). An additional liquidator has also been appointed under the section (d), even before a creditor could apply under the section a contributory has been allowed to utilize it for his claim as a creditor (e). The Scotch Courts have, however, declined to try a question of wrongful dismissal under the section, on the ground that proceedings of this nature were not suitable to the trial of an issue of fact, and that probably no jury could be summoned (f). It was intimated in one case (g) that the Court in its discretion would not decide a question as to the remuneration a manager was entitled to, where it was of opinion that owing to the company having proved abortive he ought not in honesty to have claimed any remuneration, the case under consideration was, however, decided on the ground that the liquidator had decided the remuneration payable, and that it was unnecessary for him to come to the Court, as any contributory (or now creditor) could do so if he felt himself aggrieved. Where an application is made under this section it is usual to reserve liberty to apply so that future applications may be made by ordinary (and not originating) summons and consequently will not require personal service. A practice has grown up of taking out under the section an originating summons asking for liberty to apply only (gg). This course is usually taken to avoid expense or difficulty in effecting personal service of an originating summons for a balance order, or for some other order. The originating summons for liberty to apply is ex parte, and except for the purpose of proving that there is a voluntary winding-up no evidence will be required. A possible distinction between compulsory and voluntary liquidation on the question of dismissal of servants is discussed later. If a creditor who resides abroad makes an application under the section he will be required to give security for costs (h). A liquidator, on the other hand, will not have to give security (i).

RESOLUTIONS FOR VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP.

To return to the resolution for voluntary winding-up, it will be unnecessary here to recapitulate all the rules which govern meetings and notices of meetings (ii), but a voluntary winding-up resolution will be bad if the notice for the meeting to pass it was sent out by an unauthorized person (k). Further, where it is proposed to wind-up by extraordinary resolution on the ground that the company cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business and that it is advisable to wind-up, it must be made clear by the notice summoning the meeting, that the resolution will not require confirmation at a second meeting (l). For this purpose it will be sufficient if the notice follows the terms of section 182 (3) (m). It will not, however, it is thought, be sufficient for it to state that the resolution is to be extraordinary (n), for an extraordinary resolution will be necessary even where there is to be a confirmatory resolution (o). Where the liquidation is part of a scheme of reconstruction the winding-up will be valid, even though the reconstruction fail if the resolution for winding-up is entirely separate (p). Where, however, the resolution states that the winding-up is for the purpose of reconstruction, there is more difficulty, in such case it would appear that if the reconstruction scheme is ultra vires, the winding-up will fail with it (q). One of the consequences that follows on a voluntary winding-up, is that the company in general meeting appoints one or more liquidators for the purpose of winding up the affairs and distributing the assets of the company, and it may also fix the remuneration to be paid to such liquidator or liquidators (r). The non-appointment of a liquidator will not invalidate a winding-up resolution (s). A liquidator cannot, where the resolution for winding-up is special, be validly appointed at the first meeting (t). If the resolution at such meeting purports to appoint a liquidator, the appointment will require confirmation at the second meeting (u), and at such second meeting, whether the notice of the meeting is silent on the point or not, it will be competent to appoint a totally different person liquidator (x). No notice of an intention to appoint a liquidator is necessary, for that is the necessary consequence of a winding-up resolution (y). As already stated in supervision cases, the order directs the remuneration of the liquidator to be taxed. If the company does not fix the remuneration of a liquidator, the Court can, on an application under section 193 of the Act, fix such remuneration (z), and, at all events, it frequently does so by consent. In fixing such remuneration the Court will not always follow the analogy of the fees prescribed by the General Order of 1868, and will not allow each letter to be charged for as if it had taken half an hour of the principal's time (a). The practice is, however, to take such fees as a guide. Probably rule 186 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (b), would apply by analogy to a voluntary winding-up. Where a liquidator has acted in all good faith on the strength of an appointment which is invalid the Court cannot fix his remuneration in the ordinary way, as it cannot imply any request by the company to the liquidator to act, but it will, it has been held, but in the exercise of what jurisdiction is not quite clear, allow him proper remuneration for any work he has done and of which the company has had the benefit for business purposes unconnected with the winding-up or of which the official receiver has availed himself in a subsequent compulsory liquidation (c). Where a company has resolved by special or extraordinary resolution to wind-up voluntarily, it must give notice of the resolution by advertisement in the Gazette (d).

A liquidator must within twenty-one days after his appointment, file with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies a notice of his appointment in the form prescribed by the Board of Trade, and if any liquidator contravenes this provision he will be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the contravention continues (e).

MEETING OF CREDITORS.

Every liquidator appointed by a company in a voluntary winding up must, within seven days from his appointment, send notice by post to all persons who appear to him to be creditors of the company that a meeting of the creditors of the company will be held on a date, not being less than fourteen nor more than twenty-one days after his appointment, and at a place and hour, to be specified in the notice, and must also advertise notice of the meeting once in the Gazette (ee) and once at least in two local newspapers circulating in the district where the registered office or principal place of business of the company is situate.

At the meeting (f) to be held in pursuance of the foregoing provisions of this section the creditors must determine whether an application shall be made to the Court for the appointment of any person as liquidator in the place of or jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company, or for the appointment of a committee of inspection, and, if the creditors so resolve, an application may be made accordingly to the Court at any time, not later than fourteen days after the date of the meeting, by any creditor appointed for the purpose at the meeting.

On any such application the Court may make an order either for the removal of the liquidator appointed by the company and for the appointment of some other person as liquidator or for the appointment of some other person to act as liquidator jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company, or for the appointment of a committee of inspection either together with or without any such appointment of a liquidator or such other order as, having regard to the interests of the creditors and contributories of the company, may seem just. Apparently on a change of liquidators the new liquidator will have to summon a meeting under the section (g), if he is appointed by the company.

No appeal lies from any order of the Court upon an application under this section.

The Court will make such order as to the costs of the application as it thinks fit, and if it is of opinion that, having regard to the interests of the creditors in the liquidation, there were reasonable grounds for the application, may order the costs of the application to be paid out of the assets of the company, notwithstanding that the application is dismissed or otherwise disposed of adversely to the applicant (h).

DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY TO APPOINT LIQUIDATORS.

A company about to be, or in course of being, wound up voluntarily may, by extraordinary resolution, delegate to its creditors, or to any committee of them, the power of appointing liquidators or any of them, and of supplying vacancies among the liquidators, or enter into any arrangement (i) with respect to the powers to be exercised by the liquidators and the manner in which they are to be exercised any act done by the liquidators in pursuance of any such delegated power will have the same effect as if it had been done by the company (k). The power given by this provision is never exercised.

(f) At such a meeting it would appear that proxies could not be used as there is no common law right to use them: cp. Harben v. Phillips (1883), 23 C. D. 14. It would also seem that the value of a creditor's debt should not be taken into account on a vote.

POWER TO FILL VACANCY IN OFFICE OF LIQUIDATOR.

If a vacancy occurs by death, resignation, or otherwise in the office of liquidator in a voluntary winding-up, the company in general meeting may, subject to any arrangement with its creditors, fill the vacancy.

For that purpose a general meeting may be convened by any contributory or, if there were more liquidators than one, by the continuing liquidators, or liquidator.

The meeting must be held in manner prescribed by the articles, or in such manner as may, on application by any contributory or by the continuing liquidators, be determined by the Court (l).

If from any cause whatever there is no liquidator acting, the Court may, on the application of a contributory appoint a liquidator, and it may on cause shown (m) remove a liquidator and appoint another liquidator (n). It would appear that the last preceding words enable the Court to appoint an additional liquidator in a purely voluntary winding up (o), and that it can also appoint a liquidator in place of one who has resigned (p). Applications of this sort must be made to the Companies (Winding-up) Court (q). Every liquidator appointed by the Court will have to give security unless, which very rarely happens, the order gives directions to the contrary. Usually the order does not go until security is given. Such security will be given to the Registrar in Companies (Winding-up) and one of the Bankruptcy Registrars, and not to the Board of Trade, where the liquidation is not compulsory, the practice is the same as when a receiver in a debenture-holder's action gives security (r). the recognizance bond or undertaking being mutatis mutandis in the same form, and for the same amounts.

CESSER OF BUSINESS AND POWERS OF COMPANY.

except so far as may be required for the beneficial winding-up thereof; but the corporate state and corporate powers of the company, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in its articles, continue until it is dissolved (s).

It has been held that a voluntary winding-up unlike a compulsory winding-up, does not operate as a notice of dismissal to servants (t), the reasons assigned being that while a voluntary liquidator is the agent of the company, a liquidator appointed in a compulsory winding-up is an officer of the Court, and consequently in the latter, unlike the former case, there is a change of employment. This view, which is inconsistent with Shireff's Case (u) and Ex parte Schumann (v), the latter of which was not cited, is, it is respectfully submitted, wrong.

It is not correct to say that a liquidator in a compulsory winding-up is an officer of the Court for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company, he is only an officer of the Court for the purposes mentioned in section 173 of the Act (w), and carrying on the business of the company is not one of those purposes, and, moreover, a liquidator in a voluntary winding-up is for some purposes in the same position as an officer of the Court (x). An examination of Chapman's Case (y) which first decided that the advertisement of a winding-up order was notice of dismissal to servants shows, it is thought, that the ground of the decision was not a change of employment, but that such a rule would be convenient, as it would save giving formal notices in each case, and would not operate harshly as every one had notice of the winding-up order, and would know that primâ facie that would end the business. These grounds would seem to apply equally in a voluntary winding-up where, as already stated, the resolution must be advertised. It is no doubt true to say that a voluntary liquidator is in a sense the agent of the company (z), but the same may be said of a liquidator in a compulsory winding up (a), and in both cases if there is a deficiency of assets a creditor of the company while a going concern, is in an entirely different position to a person whose debt was contracted by the liquidator (b). The principle of the case now under consideration no doubt finds some support in The Brighton Arcade Co. v. Dowling (c), but the decision in this case would appear to be inconsistent alike with the reasoning in Sankey Brook Coal Co. (d), and with all the later cases (e). Nor does the decision in Midland Counties District Bank v. Attwood (f) find much support from the dicta of Lord Esher in Reid v. Explosives Co. (g), for these dicta only suggest that a voluntary liquidator can make a fresh contract to employ a servant, a proposition that may be readily admitted seeing that in a compulsory liquidation the liquidator has also got this power (h). In one case leave was given to a voluntary liquidator to file a contract which section 7 of the Companies Act, 1900, required to be filed (i), on the ground that if he failed to do so he might be liable as an officer of the company to penalties (k). Primâ facie a winding-up will not terminate ordinary trade contracts which the company has made previous to liquidation and which are not of a personal nature (l). On the appointment of a liquidator all the powers of the directors cease except so far as the company in general meeting or the liquidator sanctions the continuance thereof (m). Meetings have been summoned in a voluntary winding-up, to appoint directors, where it was desirable to forfeit shares and the articles of the company gave the directors power to forfeit shares (n).

APPLICATION OF PROPERTY OF COMPANY.

The property of the company must be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu and subject thereto must unless the articles otherwise provide, be distributed among the members according to their rights and interests (o). This provision, though only in terms applicable to a voluntary winding-up is in effect applicable also to every form of winding-up (p). The provision as to paying the liabilities of the company pari passu is the reason why, as has already been stated, the Court will step in and stay actions and other proceedings in a voluntary winding-up (q), and where the company is insolvent section 207 of the Act imports the bankruptcy rules in a voluntary winding-up just as it does in a compulsory liquidation (r). All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding-up of a company including the remuneration of the liquidator are payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims (s). Here again the rule is apparently similar to the rule in a compulsory winding-up which has already been considered. It would seem that the Court can also as in a compulsory liquidation, make a special order as to costs (t). As already stated, debts incurred by the liquidator have priority in the same way as in a compulsory winding up (u), and where proceedings have been unsuccessfully brought, defended or continued by a liquidator, any costs he or the company is ordered to pay will have priority (x) and be payable immediately (y), just as in a compulsory liquidation.

It will therefore be unnecessary to go into these matters at any length here, as they have already been fully dealt with under compulsory winding-up. Webb v. Whiffin (1872), L. R. 5 H. L. 711, also shows that the expression "property" in s. 186 (1) means the free property after paying charges, having priority, and includes uncalled capital.

A liquidator who discontinues proceedings for calls commenced by the company before liquidation and then takes proceedings to enforce the same calls, will not be restrained from taking such proceedings until he has paid the costs of the action, but if he is successful such costs will be set off against the amount he recovers (z). If a supervision order is made the costs of the petitioner and of the liquidator's solicitor on the petition and for work done by the authority of the liquidator after the order will have priority to the remuneration of the liquidator for the period prior to the order (a). It has been held, however, that the costs of the liquidator prior to the supervision order have priority to the petitioner's costs (b). It may be doubted, however, whether this case will stand with The Sanitary Burial Association (a), which was a decision of the Court of Appeal, and which certainly seems to indicate that rule 187 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, applies in a voluntary as well as a compulsory winding-up, although it is in terms only applicable to a compulsory winding-up. Of course, certain of the costs mentioned in the rule could only arise in a compulsory winding-up. Apart from any special order, the costs of a purely voluntary liquidation

POWERS OF LIQUIDATORS.

Where several liquidators are appointed every power given to liquidators may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined at the time of their appointment or in default of such determination by any number not less than two (d). It would seem that where there are several liquidators, they cannot authorize one of their number even to sign a specific bill or to do any single act in exercise of their powers as liquidators (e), and certainly where bills to a certain amount are to be renewed, and the old bills have to be handed over, and the dates and amounts of the new bills have to be settled these matters cannot be left to one liquidator, as they involve the exercise of a discretion (e). A director who is also one of several liquidators cannot, of course, accept a bill after the winding-up resolution, and if he does do so the company will in no way be liable (f).

The liquidator may, without the sanction of the Court, exercise all the powers by the Act given to the liquidator in a winding-up by the Court (g).

In a liquidation it is, apart from special provisions like section 192, the duty of the liquidator to sell the assets for cash (h).

His powers under the sub-section above-mentioned include in a purely voluntary liquidation (i) the powers conferred on a liquidator in a compulsory winding-up (k) by (1) section 151 of the Act; (2) presumably the power conferred by section 150 of the Act of taking into his custody or under his control all the property and things in action to which the company is or appears to be entitled (l); and a liquidator has also (3) power to summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purpose he thinks fit (m); (4) power with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company to do any of the things authorized by section 214 of the Act, that is to say—

(1) To pay any classes of creditors in full.

(2) To make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors or having or alleging themselves to have any claim present or future certain or contingent ascertained or sounding only in damages against the company or whereby the company may be rendered liable.

(3) Power to compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts and liabilities capable of resulting in debts and all claims present or future certain or contingent ascertained or sounding only in damages subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and a contributory or alleged contributory or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets or the winding-up of the company on such terms as may be agreed and to take any security for the discharge of any such call debt liability or claim and give a complete discharge in respect thereof.

These powers have already been considered so far as they affect liquidations under orders of the Court (mm); here it is only necessary to add that a creditor cannot impeach a compromise, on the ground that it has not been sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, such resolution only being required for the purpose of protecting the company against its liquidator and the liquidator himself (n). A voluntary liquidator may not without the leave of the Court compromise a claim that has been submitted to the Court, but the onus of proof will lie on the person seeking to upset the compromise (o).

Any arrangement entered into between a company about to be, or in the course of being, wound-up voluntarily, and its creditors, will, subject to the right of appeal below mentioned, be binding on the company if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, and on the creditors if acceded to by three-fourths in number and value of the creditors.

Any creditor or contributory may, within three weeks from the completion of the arrangement, appeal to the Court against it, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary, or confirm the arrangement (p).

In addition, compromises or arrangements may be entered into as has already been stated, under section 120 of the Act with the sanction of the Court.

The liquidator in a voluntary winding-up may exercise the powers of the Court under the Act of settling the list of contributories and making calls, and must pay the debts of the company and adjust the rights of the contributories amongst themselves. The list of contributories will be primâ facie evidence of the liability of the persons therein named to be contributories (q). The other powers of the Court, so far as they are exercisable in a voluntary liquidation (r), are exercisable by the Court on an application under section 193 of the Act.

The provisions contained in section 186 (v.) and (vi.) of the Act would, however, appear to give the liquidator the powers which the Court has on a compulsory winding-up under section 163 and 166 of the Act, except the power of rectifying the register (s). As to this the Act provides (t) that in the case of a voluntary winding-up every transfer of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidator and every alteration in the status of the members of the company made after the commencement of the winding-up will be void. A transfer authorized by a liquidator under this section will free the transferor from liability to be put on the A list of contributories, the transferee being put there in his place. If there have been several transfers sanctioned by the liquidator all the transferors will be placed on the B list of contributories (u). The Court has power to rectify the register for the purpose of settling the list of contributories (x), but it cannot do so in a voluntary, any more than in a compulsory, liquidation where there is a voidable contract with the contributory which he has not taken proceedings to repudiate before the commencement of the liquidation (y), or the stoppage of the business of the company (z), whichever happens first (a).

Rules 77 to 82 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, which relate to the settling of the list of contributories in a compulsory liquidation, are not in terms applicable to a voluntary winding-up, though, no doubt, the liquidator in such a winding-up will use them as a guide to his duties. With regard to the rules for making calls (b), these would, with the exception of rule 87, seem to have no application to a voluntary winding-up. In such case it would appear to be the duty of the liquidator to decide what call is to be made, and then to give notice to each contributory informing him of the call and requiring him to pay it. For this purpose he signs an instrument of call and sends it to all contributories affected by the call (bb).

The Court will in a proper case, make a balance order (c) under section 193 of the Act, and rule 87 (d) of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, for payment of calls.

With regard to payment of debts it is not necessary for every debt to be strictly proved in a voluntary winding-up (e).

Debts may be proved in a voluntary winding-up by delivering or sending through the post to the liquidator an affidavit (f). The persons who may make and the contents of affidavits verifying debts are the same as in a compulsory winding-up (g), but affidavits may not in a voluntary winding-up be sworn before the persons named in rule 93 of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909. With regard to the rest of the rules relating to proofs in the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, all of them (h) except rule 101 relating to transmission of proofs by the official receiver to the liquidator, apply to a voluntary winding-up.

With regard to the admission and rejection of proofs subject to the provisions of the Act, and unless otherwise ordered by the Court, a voluntary liquidator may from time to time fix a certain day, not less than fourteen days from the notice, on or before which the creditors of the company are to prove their debts or claims or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before such debts are proved and the liquidator must give notice in writing of the date so fixed by advertisement in such newspaper as he considers convenient and to the last known address or place of abode of each person who to the knowledge of the liquidator claims to be a creditor, and whose claim has not been admitted (i). The rules as to examination of proofs (k), as to appeals by creditors (l), and as to the power of the Court to expunge proofs (m) apply to a voluntary liquidation, but not the other rules comprised under the heading "admission and rejection of proofs and appeals to the Court" (n).

The rules as to "dividends in a winding-up by the Court" would appear to have no application (o), and the same may be said in regard to the rules as to meetings (p).

(d) Forms 60, 61, and 62 in the appendix to the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, would seem to be applicable to a voluntary winding-up. See supra, pp. 1180 and 1181, 1184 and 1186.

RECONSTRUCTION.

Where a company is proposed to be or is in the course of being wound-up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or part of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company (in the section called the transferee company), the liquidator of the first-mentioned company (in the section called the transferor company) may, with the sanction of a special resolution of that company, conferring either a general authority on the liquidator or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive in compensation or part compensation for the transfer or sale, shares, policies, or other like interests in the transferee company, for distribution among the members of the transferor company, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the transferor company may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the transferee company.

Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section will be binding on the members of the transferor company.

If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution at either of the meetings held for passing and confirming the same expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the confirmation of the resolution, he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect, or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner provided by the section.

If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

A special resolution will not be invalid for the purposes of the section by reason that it is passed before or concurrently with a resolution for winding-up the company, or for appointing liquidators; but, if an order is made within a year for winding-up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the special resolution will not be valid unless sanctioned by the Court.

For the purposes of an arbitration under the section the provisions of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, or, in the case of a winding-up in Scotland, the Companies Clauses Consolidation (Scotland) Act, 1845, with respect to the settlement of disputes by arbitration, are incorporated with the Act; and in the construction of those provisions the Act will be deemed to be the special

Act, and "the company" will mean the transferor company, and any appointment by such incorporated provisions directed to be made under the hand of the secretary or any two of the directors may be made under the hand of the liquidator, or if there is more than one liquidator, then of any two or more liquidators (q).

Any agreement which provides for the sale of the assets of a company for shares or other interests in another company and for distribution in specie of the shares or other interests so acquired in the winding-up of the transferor company, and which is not made under the powers conferred by this section, will be ultra vires in the sense that it will only be binding if all the members of the transferor company agree to it (r). Such assent may in some cases be inferred from the acquiescence of such members (s), but the Court will be very slow to infer acquiescence from the mere fact that an agreement which does not deal with the distribution of the proceeds of sale has been sanctioned, even where prior to the resolution giving such sanction, a circular has been sent round showing that it is proposed to vary the rights of members (t).

Even since Bisgood v. Henderson's Transvaal Estates (u), it is a little difficult to say whether an agreement for sale which does not expressly mention either winding-up or distribution will be invalidated by the fact that contemporaneously or almost contemporaneously a scheme is put forward for winding-up and distribution in a manner not sanctioned by section 192. If the liquidator of the transferor company is selling, it would appear to be clear that the agreement will be invalid (x). Further, where there is a winding-up resolution passed at the same time or within a day or two of the resolution sanctioning the agreement, the agreement itself will fail (y). But where the agreement is sanctioned and it does not deal with either winding-up or distribution and there has been no further resolution, it may be that the Court will be slow to declare the agreement invalid, even where a circular has been sent round stating that liquidation, coupled with a distribution not sanctioned by section 192, will follow (z), the reason apparently being that in such case the shares acquired become assets of the transferor company, and may be dealt with as such (z).

Section 192 deals with a sale of part only of the assets (a), as well as with the sale of all the assets and it would therefore seem that Wall v. London and Northern Assets (b) would scarcely be followed now. Nor is the case of Griffith v. Paget (c), which was there cited, an authority for the proposition that an agreement for sale will be valid, even where it contains a clause as to a wrongful distribution, for in Griffith v. Paget (c) such clause was not in the agreement, and the person complaining was getting too much and not too little, and it was from the beginning obvious that as ultimately happened (d) the share-holders who were injured by the scheme might all consent to the proposed distribution and agree to give a bonus to the other shareholders. Section 192 then does not alter the rights of members except so far as it allows of a distribution in specie and not a sale of the shares acquired (e), and therefore, where there are preference and ordinary shares in the transferor company and the preference shares have no priority on a return of capital, the shares in the transferee company which form the consideration for the sale, must all rank pari passu (f). It has been held (g) that a clause in an agreement providing for a special payment by the transferee company to the directors of the transferor company did not vitiate the agreement because it was simply a subsidiary clause, apparently the clause in question did not in the particular facts of the case injure the applicant. A clause in the memorandum or articles of a company which purports to exclude dissentients from the rights conferred on them by section 192 will be simply bad, for it will not be such an agreement as is contemplated by section 192 (3). Such an agreement must probably be made either with the liquidator or with the company immediately before the resolutions for winding-up and reconstruction (h).

A liquidator may by his conduct waive (i) a benefit arising from a condition of the section which was inserted for the benefit of the dissentient member, and so a notice of dissent which has not been left at the registered office of the company, but has been accepted by the liquidator, will be good (k), and likewise a notice given and accepted between the meetings for passing and confirming the special resolution, though possibly it would be otherwise in the case of a notice given before the first meeting (l). A person who wishes to dissent must not only give notice in writing of his dissent within the seven days allowed by section 192 (3), but he must also within that period require the liquidator in writing either to abstain from the agreement or to purchase his interest (m). The notice will not, however, be invalid if it requires the liquidator either to abstain or to purchase the dissentients' interest at a given price (n). Where the directors of a company wrongfully refused to register a transfer, the Court will rectify the register so as to make a notice of dissent given by the transferee, retrospectively good (o). Where a person has given notice of dissent he will still remain liable to the creditors of the company (p), except, of course, in cases where the new company is to pay the debts of the old company, and the creditors have done some act which precludes them from looking to any one but the new company for payment of their debts (q). And a liquidator should not in furtherance of a scheme take a transfer of the dissentients' shares, for section 192 does not contemplate such a transfer, and it will not relieve the dissentient from the debts of the old company (r), though it may possibly relieve him from debts incurred by the liquidator himself after the transfer, including debts in carrying out the scheme (s). Where a reconstruction is bonâ fide a holder of fully paid shares in the transferor company who has received shares in the transferee company will not be liable to be treated as though he had not paid for his shares in full on the ground that part of his paid-up capital has been returned to him (t). Notices for sanctioning a scheme under section 192 must show that it is proposed to carry out the scheme under that section (u).

Both amalgamations and reconstructions can be carried out under the section. An amalgamation involves the idea of two or more companies joining their businesses or part of their businesses together, it need not necessarily be carried out by both selling to a third company, a reconstruction involves the idea of the same business or part of the same business being carried on by a new company consisting of substantially the same persons as the members of the old company (x).

(2) Shareholders of the transferor company may be required to apply for shares in the transferee company within a given time (a). shares in the transferee company nor dissented (e). If both agreement and scheme are silent on this point such shares should be sold and the net proceeds divided in this manner (f).

(5) Shares in the transferee company may be given direct to members of the transferor company (g).

(6) The scheme may provide for calls being made for the purpose of paying all or a part of the debts of the transferor company (h), or that calls shall be made by the transferor company and that the proceeds thereof shall be paid to the transferee company (i), but apparently it cannot provide for calls being made on all members of the transferor company, or it would seem even on such of them as take shares in the transferee company, in the event of the assets of the transferor company proving not to be of a certain value (k), nor can it require members of the transferor company to pay a sum for the privilege of having shares in the transferee company allotted to them (l).

(7) On such a scheme the transferee company may, subject to the provisions of section 89 of the Act, pay an underwriting commission to persons who agree to purchase such of their shares as are not applied for by members of the transferor company, even though such shares form part of the shares to which such members would have been entitled had they applied, and are partly or wholly paid up (m).

(8) The sale may be to a trustee for an intended company (n), but it cannot be to a speculator who is to form any sort of company he likes (o).

(9) The section applies to mutual assurance companies and to companies registered under Part VII. of the Act, even where they have only registered to get the benefit of its provisions (p).

Members of the transferor company who do not dissent cannot be compelled to take shares in the transferee company (q), and if the directors of the transferee company proceed to put their names on its register, they will be entitled to have such register rectified (r). An application for shares in the transferee company which is forwarded to the liquidator of the transferor company can be withdrawn at any time before it is accepted by the transferee company (s), and where the contract is to allot the shares to the transferor company or its nominees, the transferee company may not put the transferor company on its register against its will except possibly in cases where there has been an unreasonable delay in furnishing a list of nominees, for the intention cannot have been to have a company which is to be deprived of its assets as a contributory (t). The section does not authorize a sale to a foreign company (u), or indeed to any company which is not a company within the definition contained in 285 of the Act (x), possibly this might in some cases be got over with the help of section 263 of the Act, by the transferee company registering under Part VII. of the Act, but, as stated in an earlier part of this work, a foreign company cannot register under the Act (xx).

The Court cannot under section 192 (5) and section 193 make an order validating a sale under the section unless either a compulsory or a supervision order has been made (y), and there have been cases where a supervision order has been obtained, in order that the Court might forthwith make an order which would be binding on creditors and contributories alike (z). The Court can where there is a compulsory liquidation (a), or a winding-up subject to supervision (b), sanction a scheme which, if the company was in purely voluntary liquidation, could be carried out under section 192. Where the Court is asked to do this a special resolution is not necessary (b).

A reconstruction scheme will in no way relieve the liquidator of the transferor company from the duties to creditors which fall on a liquidator in every winding-up, and he will have not only to advertise for such creditors, but to send notices to such of them as he knows of, even where the transferee company is liable under its contract with the transferor company to pay such debts (c). The shares to be acquired by members of a transferor company under a reconstruction scheme under the section do not form part of the assets of that company (d).

The proper course to be taken by creditors who conceive that they are aggrieved by a reconstruction scheme is to present a petition for a winding-up order or for the winding-up of the Court subject to supervision, so that the scheme, if it is to go through, shall at least require the sanction of the Court. A creditor who lies by for a year and omits to present a petition will not be able to go behind, and will be bound by the scheme (e). A contributory, too, may petition for a winding-up by or under the supervision of the Court, and will obtain an order if he can show that the scheme is an unfair one, and that the minority of the members of the company are being oppressed by the majority (f). As the transferee company cannot ordinarily (g) be a party to a petition for winding-up by or under the supervision, the Court will not on a contributory's petition inquire whether or no an agreement for reconstruction which has actually been entered into (h) between a transferor and transferee company is ultra vires of the former (i). The Court will, however, where a case has been made showing that the reconstruction scheme is not capable of being confirmed by the members of the transferor company (k), and is ultra vires of that company, give the petitioner leave to use that company's name in proceedings against the transferee company for setting aside the agreement, and stand the petition over pending such proceedings (i).

In all proceedings to invalidate a reconstruction scheme on the ground that it is ultra vires the transferor company the transferee company will be a necessary party (l), if the two companies have actually entered into an agreement. Where the case presented is, however, not that the agreement is ultra vires, but that it is unfair, it is thought that the Court can, and in a proper case will, make an order, although the transferee company is not and has not been in any sense a party to the petition or any other proceedings (m). Where a dissentient has given notice to a liquidator, the Court will not grant him an order for a private examination under section 174 of the Act so as to enable him to decide whether his best course is to petition for a compulsory or supervision order or to proceed as a dissentient, for by so doing it might put such dissentient in the position of deciding whether the scheme shall fall through or he shall be bought out, or, in other words, of exercising the option which is by the Act given to the liquidator. It will, however, possibly make such an order where there is a doubt as to whether a dissentient will get paid, for the purpose of assisting him to get his money (n).

A dissentient will, however, be entitled to present or to support (o) a petition for winding-up compulsorily or under supervision. In a proper case the Court will direct a commission to examine witnesses abroad on the application of a dissentient (p), but it has declined to give a dissentient leave to examine the books and papers of the company where he required to do so for the purpose of deciding whether or not to accept an offer made by a liquidator (q), and the Court declined in a reconstruction case decided before there were provisions similar to those contained in section 224 of the Act to order the liquidator to bring in his accounts on the ground that the matter was covered by the resolutions of the company (r). The costs of an arbitration under the section are no doubt in the discretion of the arbitrator, but where the liquidator has made no offer, the dissentient will usually not proceed at his peril (r), and where the liquidator has made an offer he will have to show that it was sufficient (q).

If the arbitrators appointed by the parties cannot agree as to who is to be umpire the Court can appoint an umpire under the powers conferred by section 5 of the Arbitration Act, 1889 (s), but it is submitted that the articles of the company cannot affect in any way the question of what is the proper course of procedure on an arbitration for the purpose of ascertaining the value of a dissentient's interest (t). Where the arbitrators have been called on to appoint an umpire the three months given to them for making their award will commence to run from the date when they have been so called upon (u). An action will lie for the price agreed upon or awarded (x), but to such an action it will be no defence to show that the defendant agreed to vote for the scheme and failed to do so as this will be simply a matter for counterclaim (y). The price to be paid to shareholders who come into the scheme, is by no means conclusive as to the value of a dissentient's interest, for he is only entitled to be paid on the footing that the whole concern is coming to an end and not on the footing of its being sold as a going concern (z). Possibly the arbitrators ought in making their award to allow for the interest lost during the period in which the dissentient has been out of his money. After the award he can only claim interest at 4 per cent. from the time when he has demanded payment (a).

The Stannaries Act, 1887, provides (b) as follows :—

When the limits of any mine join those of any other mine the Companies respectively working the said mines may with the consent in writing of the respective lessors thereof in all cases where such consent is by law or custom necessary amalgamate and become one Company provided that no such amalgamation shall take place unless each of the said companies shall authorize the same by a special resolution to which two-thirds in value of the shareholders of the said Company shall consent in writing; such resolution shall be registered in the Court and the amalgamation shall not take effect until such registration and shall be advertised in such manner as the Court directs.

Liquidation for the purpose of reconstruction will work a forfeiture of a lease which provides for forfeiture on liquidation, and the Court cannot under the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (c), relieve against such forfeiture (d).

any creditor or contributory to have it wound up by the Court if the Court is of opinion in the case of an application by a creditor that the rights of the creditor, or, in the case of an application by a contributory, that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding-up (e).

This section applies even in cases where a petition for winding up has been presented before the resolution to wind up voluntarily has been passed (f). In such case the practice is to amend the petition so that it may speak to the winding-up and any matters which are likely to prejudice the petitioner if he be a creditor, or the contributories if the petitioner be a contributory. The amended petition will be verified by a fresh statutory affidavit and served on the liquidator (g), but no re-advertisement will be necessary where a supervision order is not asked for alternatively or otherwise. There can, it is thought, be no doubt that the winding-up will date as from the original petition (h). The section is, it appears, at all events where a creditor is petitioner directory, and the Court will read it with sections 145 and 201 of the Act, and will make an order if the great majority of the creditors desire it, and they are in the circumstances the persons really interested, even though the petitioner does not show that he will be prejudiced by the continuance of the winding-up (i). The section would clearly appear not to require a creditor who petitions to do more than show that he himself will be prejudiced by the continuance of the voluntary liquidation (k). But, where the great majority of the creditors are opposed to a compulsory winding up the Court will be slow to make an order (l), except in cases where the petitioner can show clearly that there is a case which requires a public examination (m), or that the creditors opposing are in reality the persons incriminated, and that they are not acting in the interest of their class as a whole (n). With regard to a contributory petitioning, although section 194 for the first time expressly provides that a contributory shall not be barred by a voluntary winding-up, it would seem not to alter the law as laid down in the cases which preceded the passing of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (o). Where a creditor is petitioner, not much weight will, as a rule, be given to the views of contributories, unless it is clear that there will be assets for distribution among the contributories (p), and on a contributory's petition the opposition of the great bulk of the creditors, unless they are likely to be paid in full, will usually be fatal to success. Where the majority of contributories oppose, and there is no question of creditors, the Court will act on much the same principles as in the case of a creditor's petition opposed by the majority of the creditors (q).

Turning to the circumstances which have been held to be sufficient to show prejudice. The case of reconstructions has already been considered to a certain extent, but it may be added here that where a voluntary winding-up resolution has been passed for the purpose of carrying out a reconstruction scheme which fails, the Court will usually make a winding-up order, at all events, in cases where the petitioner is a contributory (r). But the usual case for a winding-up order is that there is a case for investigation which cannot be properly considered without first having a public examination (s). The facts that go to make such a case must be clearly alleged in the petition, and must be proved (t), and it will not be enough to make out a case of fraud on the general public which can in no way add to the assets, and is therefore not a proper matter for a public examination (u). Other cases where a compulsory order will be made are cases where a liquidator who for some reason or other is undesirable has been appointed (x), or where the voluntary winding-up has been conducted in a suspicious way, e.g. with great celerity and with the intention of prematurely destroying the company's books and so preventing misfeasance claims (y), or where there has been great delay (a) or irregularity (b) in the conduct of the voluntary winding-up, and where it is important to ante-date the winding-up for some particular reason (e.g. in a case of fraudulent preference), and a compulsory order will have that effect owing to the petition having been presented before the resolution for voluntary winding-up was passed (c). Where contributories are the petitioners an order may be made on the ground that the majority of the company are acting fraudulently or oppressively towards the minority (d). In all these cases it will be necessary not so much to make a case for winding-up, as for one particular kind of winding-up (e).

A difficulty that sometimes occurs where it is sought to substitute a compulsory winding-up for a voluntary winding-up is that this will post-date the winding-up. Section 198 of the Act contains the following provisions :—

Where a Company is being wound-up voluntarily and an order is made for a winding-up by the Court, the Court may if it thinks fit by the same or any subsequent order provide for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings in the voluntary winding-up.

The section does not enable the Court to provide that a compulsory liquidation shall commence at the time when a previous voluntary winding up commenced. Thus, a person who has ceased to be on the register of shareholders more than a year before the commencement of the compulsory but less than a year before the commencement of a previous voluntary winding-up, cannot be put on the B list in the compulsory liquidation, but if he has been put on the B list in the previous voluntary liquidation, the Court can adopt that list in the compulsory liquidation and he will remain liable (f). This principle would, it is submitted, go even further, and if moneys paid away in a manner that amounts to a fraudulent preference have been recovered under section 210, or debentures have been set aside under section 212 in the voluntary winding-up it would appear that the Court could adopt these proceedings in the compulsory liquidation. If proceedings had during the voluntary liquidation been taken in either of such cases, possibly the Court might be able to adopt them and proceed on the same footing as if the voluntary liquidation were still continuing, but it cannot allow such proceedings to be commenced after the winding-up order unless the compulsory winding-up commenced within the three months mentioned in the section (g). Where an order restraining a distress has been improperly obtained in a voluntary winding-up, it would appear that the landlord will not be allowed to proceed with the distress in a subsequent compulsory liquidation (h). It is thought that persons to whom debts have been incurred in the voluntary winding-up will, unless the transactions out of which such debts arose are adopted by the order, be relegated to the same position as creditors of the company (hh). An attempt to make a compulsory winding-up date back to the commencement of a voluntary winding-up which had previously commenced was made in United Service Company (i), in which case there were two petitions, one asking for a supervision, and the other for a compulsory order, and Lord Romilly, M.R., being anxious to make a compulsory order and also to date the compulsory winding-up back so as to commence at the date of the voluntary winding-up, directed that a supervision order should be made and drawn up, and that on the following day a compulsory order should be drawn up; it is highly doubtful whether this expedient had the desired effect of ante-dating the commencement of the compulsory liquidation (k).

In one case (l) where a supervision order was subsequently found to be invalid the Court in making a compulsory order adopted all proceedings in the voluntary winding-up. The order in this case was made less than a year after the commencement of the winding-up. Where a supervision order has been made the Court of Appeal can in some cases date the commencement of the winding-up back to the petition on which such order was made by extending the time for appeal and then discharging the supervision order and granting a compulsory order on such petition, but the Judge who made the supervision order cannot even if he had no jurisdiction to make it, do this (m).

It would appear to be clear that the Court can make a compulsory order after it has made a supervision order, but a strong case will be required (n).

The Court can stay all further proceedings in a compulsory winding-up, so as to enable a previous voluntary winding-up to be continued (o). A petition for compulsory winding-up can be presented by a person who only became a creditor in the voluntary liquidation (oo), by the liquidator (p) in the name of the company, or by any other person who would be entitled to present a petition if there were no voluntary liquidation (q). Moreover, where a company is being wound-up voluntarily or subject to supervision in England a petition may be presented by the official receiver attached to the Court, but the Court cannot make a winding-up order on such a petition unless it is satisfied that the voluntary winding-up or winding-up subject to supervision cannot be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors or contributories (q). An order will not be made as a matter of course on the petition of an official receiver, indeed, a strong case will be required, but it will be enough if he succeeds in making out that it is desirable for the liquidator or the Court to exercise some power, such as that of a public examination, which the liquidator or the Court would have in a compulsory, but not in any other form of liquidation (r).

WINDING-UP SUBJECT TO SUPERVISION.

When a company has by special or extraordinary resolution resolved to wind-up voluntarily, the Court may make an order that the voluntary winding-up shall continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court and with such liberty for creditors, contributories or others to apply to the Court and generally on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks just (s). The application is by petition, and the same rules as to the form of the petition and as to its advertisement, service and verification apply as in the case of a compulsory winding-up (t), as also do the rules as to attending before the Registrar on the presentation of the petition, as to notices to be given by persons who intend to appear, as to supplying a list of such persons, as to affidavits in opposition and reply, and as to substituting petitioners (x).

Vaughan Williams, J., described this form of liquidation as the best form of liquidation if it could be made as effective for investigation as for administration (y). Owing to the fact that no public examination can be ordered, this form of liquidation is not usually very effective for investigation, and Wright, J., after the Companies Act, 1900, came into force intimated that as section 25 of that Act empowered creditors to apply to the Court in a purely voluntary liquidation, there was little point in making a supervision order, and he would in future not be disposed to allow the costs of a petition for supervision except in special cases (z). This view has, however, not prevailed. The great advantage which a supervision order gives is that it stops all actions and executions, and under it, moreover, costs will always be taxed, and there will be periodical reports to the Court. These matters and the other matters which distinguish a voluntary winding-up under supervision from a purely voluntary winding-up, have already been mentioned (a).

The Court has no power to make such an order unless the resolutions for voluntary winding-up have been validly passed and supervision orders have been held to be invalid, where the notices summoning the meetings which passed such resolutions were bad (b), and where the persons who voted for them were not entitled to vote (c). The resolutions may, however, be passed after the presentation of the petition (d). Where no proper resolution has been passed the supervision order is bad, and nothing can be done under it, but a Court of first instance cannot make a compulsory order on the same petition as that on which it originally made a supervision order (e), but it can do so on another petition, and the Court of Appeal can treat the matter as an appeal and make an order on the original petition (e). Section 201 of the Act contains the only provision which in any way indicates the circumstances which are to guide the Court in exercising its discretion as to granting or refusing a supervision order (f).

That section provides that the Court may, in deciding between a winding-up by the Court and a winding-up subject to supervision, in the appointment of liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding-up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

Primâ facie a contributory who petitions for a supervision order will be acting against the wishes of the majority of the contributories who have voted for an ordinary voluntary winding-up (g), and in cases where the petitioner is in a minority it would appear that the question for the Court is whether, having regard to the facts which have been alleged and proved, a case is made out rendering it proper to make a supervision order with a view to putting in force provisions of the Act which would be available if such an order were made, but would not be available in an ordinary voluntary winding-up (h).

Some of the older cases indicate that a supervision order will only be made on the application of a contributory where either the application is supported by a majority of the contributories or it is shown that the resolution for voluntary liquidation was passed either fraudulently or by the majority of the company using their voting power in an improper or oppressive way (i). This view also, it must be borne in mind, prevailed in the case where a contributory petitioned for a compulsory order while there was a voluntary winding-up current, but was ultimately displaced by the rule, which has now found a place in the Act, that a contributory need only show that the contributories will be injured if the voluntary winding-up continues (k). It is submitted that a contributory who can show this will also be entitled to a supervision order, but it must of course be borne in mind in considering this question that the advantage of a public examination under section 175 of the Act will not be given by a supervision order. It has been held (l) that where there is no question of impropriety or preferences a creditor is not entitled to a supervision order ex debito justitiæ; but in the case under consideration there were no very special circumstances, and all the creditors except the petitioner opposed a supervision order. A supervision order was made in one case on the petition of a lessor whose debt was admitted to the extent of £700, his case being that the company were seeking to drive him to litigation for the balance and were declining the arbitration proceedings he was urging them to consent to (m). A supervision order has been made in a reconstruction case on the ground that the persons who controlled the new company were also the persons who controlled the liquidation of the old one (n), and such an order has also been made on the petition of the liquidator in a voluntary liquidation, such liquidator being also a shareholder, where proceedings were threatened to impeach an agreement for sale, and it was considered that the question in dispute could not conveniently be tried under section 193, and that it was desirable that the onus of showing that it was right that proceedings should be brought should be on the person threatening to bring them (o). Not infrequently supervision orders are taken with the consent of all parties in order to prevent unnecessary actions being brought in future against the company (p). The Court will usually not make a supervision order until the meeting of creditors required by section 188 of the Act has been held (pp). At the same time it may be desirable even in a hostile case, where it is not considered desirable to throw forward the commencement of the winding-up, to take a supervision and not a compulsory order, and in this connection the powers conferred by section 202 of the Act are important. That section provides that where an order is made for a winding-up subject to supervision the Court may by the same or any subsequent order appoint any additional liquidator (q); and that a liquidator so appointed by the Court shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position as if he had been appointed by the company. The section also provides that the Court may remove any liquidator so appointed by the Court, or any liquidator continued under the supervision order, and may fill any vacancy occasioned by the removal or by death or resignation. An additional liquidator appointed under these provisions will, as is the case with all liquidators appointed by the Court, have to give security, even where the original liquidators appointed by the company are continued and have not been required to give security (r).

(p) Very frequently, too, a supervision order is taken as a compromise between a compulsory and a purely voluntary liquidation.

(pp) Neville, J., took this course in Wyvern Kid Co., 0050 of 1912, February 20th and March 12th, 1912—the object of this is that the Court may ascertain the wishes of the creditors.

It is thought that the persons, other than the official receiver, who are by section 137 of the Act authorized to petition for a compulsory order, will also be entitled to petition for a supervision order, though it will be noticed that that section speaks of "the winding-up of a company," and not as section 82 of the Act of 1862 of "the winding-up of a company under this Act" (s). The voluntary liquidator can also petition for a supervision order (t) presumably in the name of the company, and in spite of a decision to the contrary (t) it is thought that a debt which arose in the course of the voluntary liquidation will be sufficient to support a petition (u). Where a petitioner at the hearing asks for a supervision and not a compulsory order, he cannot be forced to take a compulsory order (x), but if the petition asks for a compulsory order, the Court may in such case upon such terms as it may think just substitute as petitioner any creditor or contributory who in the opinion of the Court would have a right to present a petition and who is desirous of prosecuting the petition (y). An order for winding-up a company subject to supervision must before the expiration of twelve days from its date be advertised by the petitioner once in the Gazette, and must be served on such persons (if any) and in such manner as the Court directs (z).

Where an order has been made in Scotland or Ireland for winding-up a company subject to supervision, and an order is afterwards made for winding-up by the Court, the Court may by the last-mentioned or by any subsequent order appoint any person who is then liquidator, either provisionally or permanently, and either with or without any other person, to be liquidator in the winding-up by the Court (a).

REPORTS BY LIQUIDATOR IN SUPERVISION CASES.

As already stated, the supervision order requires a report to be filed every three months, and the taxation or allowance of costs, charges, remunerations, and other expenses payable out of the assets of the company (b). When a supervision order is made the Registrar sends to the liquidator a document showing what his report must contain. Such document is headed "Liquidator's Reports in Supervision Cases," and runs as follows:—

These Reports should comprise the following matters, and should treat them with approximate accuracy:—

Estimated amount of claims by unsecured Creditors.
,, ,, other claims (general).
,, ,, Preferential claims.
,, ,, Debentures issued and presumed to be valid (or otherwise).
General statement as to assets.
Estimate of value of property.
Statement as to unpaid Capital and to what extent considered good.
Estimate of value of Book debts.
Amount of unpaid Calls (if any) and estimate of amount likely to be realized.
Number and nominal value of issued Founder's shares.
,, ,, ,, Ordinary shares.
,, ,, ,, Preference shares.
,, ,, ,, Deferred shares.
Work done by Liquidator to date of Report.
Steps proposed with view to carrying Liquidation to conclusion.
The names of the Solicitors, if any, employed by the Liquidator for purposes of the Liquidation.

The above particulars are not exhaustive, but they should be included in the Liquidator's Report.
A copy of all Circulars sent to the Creditors or Shareholders should be filed with the Reports.
Reports should be numbered consecutively, and each should show the date of its immediate predecessor.

TAXATION OF COSTS, CHARGES, AND EXPENSES.

With a view to enforcing the provisions of the supervision order as to taxation and allowance of costs, charges, remuneration, etc., the Registrar Companies (Winding-up), as soon as a supervision order is made, sends a sealed copy of such order to the Board of Trade, and when the liquidator sends in his accounts to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies under section 224 of the Act and the rules made under that section, such last-mentioned Registrar files one copy of such accounts and sends the other to the Board of Trade to be audited; on such audit no items which should have been taxed or allowed by the Registrar Companies (Winding-up) (c), will, unless and until they have been so taxed or allowed, be allowed in the accounts. The usual order as to costs in a supervision case made on a petition for a compulsory order gives one set of costs to the petitioner, one to the company and its liquidator, one to the creditors, whether supporting or opposing, and one to the contributories, whether supporting or opposing, creditors or contributories appearing by the same solicitor as the petitioner not to share in costs attributed to their class (d).

To sum up the position in a liquidation subject to supervision, section 203 has already been mentioned and set out.

Under the provisions incorporated by that section it would appear that the acts of a liquidator will be valid notwithstanding any defects that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification (e), and that he will take into his custody or under his control all the property to which the company is or appears to be entitled (f), and he can, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all the powers conferred by section 151 of the Act. It would appear that, subject always to any special restriction, section 203, though in some ways differently worded to section 151 of the Companies Act, 1862, will have the same effect as that section, and consequently except as to reconstruction (g) the liquidator would seem to have the same powers as in a purely voluntary winding-up (h), but no doubt the Court will have concurrent powers as to settling the list of contributories and the making and enforcement of calls and the Court will in such a winding-up also have the powers conferred by sections 163 to 172 (both inclusive) of the Act and the provisions of sections 174, and 176 to 181 (both inclusive) would also appear to be applicable (i).

The position as to staying actions, etc. (k), as to disposal of property and transfers (l), and as to executions, etc. (m), would, where a supervision order has been made, appear to be precisely the same as in the case where a compulsory order has been made; and the same remark applies to the prosecution of directors and others (n) and as to the inspection of the company's books (o) and the disposal thereof when the liquidation is complete (p).

With regard to compromises under section 214, that section would appear to place the case of a supervision order in the same position as the case where a compulsory order has been made, except that in a supervision case the sanction of the committee of inspection will not suffice; but it has been held (q) that a compromise under the section will be binding in a supervision case, even where the sanction of the Court has not been obtained, the ground being that a liquidator has after a supervision order the same powers as he had before, as such powers are preserved by section 203. If this decision is correct there would certainly appear to be no reason why the powers conferred by section 191 of the Act should not also survive a supervision order (r). With regard to the dissolution of a company being wound up subject to supervision, the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies requires the same returns as if there were no supervision order, and it is the universal practice to do this. At the same time, section 203 (2) of the Act, while expressly excluding many sections which apply to a compulsory winding-up, does not exclude section 172, and it would certainly appear that the proper mode of dissolution of a company is the same in a supervision as in a compulsory case (s). In other matters the position will be the same in a supervision case as in a purely voluntary winding-up.

FINAL MEETING AND DISSOLUTION.

In the case of every voluntary liquidation as soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up the liquidator must make up an account of the winding-up, showing how the winding-up has been conducted and the property of the company has been disposed of; and thereupon he must call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying before it the account and giving any explanation thereof.

The meeting must be called by advertisement in the Gazette (ss), specifying the time, place, and object thereof, and published one month at least before the meeting.

Within one week after the meeting the liquidator must make a return to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies of the holding of the meeting and of its date, and in default of so doing he will be liable to a fine not exceeding £5 for every day during which the default continues.

The Registrar on receiving the return must forthwith register it, and on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return the company will be deemed to be dissolved.

The Court may, however, on the application of the liquidator or any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit.

It will be the duty of the person on whose application an order of the Court under this section is made, within seven days after the making of the order, to file with the Registrar an office copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do he will be liable to a fine not exceeding £5 for every day during which the default continues (t).

Prior to the Companies Act, 1907, the Court had no power to defer the date at which the dissolution took effect if once the final meeting had been held and the return had been registered (u). The only thing that it could do was to stay all further proceedings in the winding-up, and this it could only do on the application of a creditor or contributory (x).

After dissolution no winding-up order can be made against a company except possibly in cases where the dissolution can be set aside on the ground of fraud (y), and probably not even in this case (z); but these remarks must now be taken to be subject to the power of the Court at any time within two years of the date of the dissolution to declare the dissolution void (a). Moreover, if proceedings are taken against a company even after the return has been registered and are delayed solely by the state of the business of the Court dissolution will make no difference (b). It will be otherwise, however, if the delay has arisen partly owing to the fact that the parties were not ready for a hearing (c), and in such latter case a solicitor who acts for the company after dissolution, whether he knows or ought to have known of the dissolution or not, will be personally liable to the other party for costs (d). Dissolution will, moreover, subject always to the above remarks, be a bar to the claims of creditors (e), and it will not in any way vest in creditors the rights which prior to dissolution the company or its liquidator had. Thus a creditor cannot bring proceedings after dissolution against directors for misfeasances which they have committed prior to dissolution (f). It has been held, (g) indeed, that a creditor can bring proceedings against a liquidator for acts done by him in the winding-up, even where no fraud is alleged, but this case was a case which very nearly though apparently not quite, amounted to fraud, and it has already been submitted that apart from fraud it cannot be supported.

MEETING WHERE WINDING-UP CONTINUES MORE THAN ONE YEAR.

In the event of the winding-up continuing for more than one year, the liquidator must summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year from the commencement of the winding-up and of each succeeding year or as soon thereafter as may be convenient and must lay before the meeting an account of his acts and dealings and of the conduct of the winding-up during the preceding year (h).

INFORMATION AS TO PENDING LIQUIDATIONS.

It will be borne in mind that section 224 of the Act applies to a voluntary winding-up as well as to a compulsory winding-up, and that consequently where the liquidation is not concluded within the year the voluntary liquidator will have to comply with the requirements of the section and of rules 189 and 190 the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909 (i), as to the statements to be made to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies. For the purpose of section 224 a winding-up is to be deemed to be concluded in the case of a company wound up voluntarily or under the supervision of the Court at the date of the dissolution of the company, unless at such date any funds or assets of the company remain unclaimed or undistributed in the hands or under the control of the liquidator, or any person who has acted as liquidator, in which case the winding-up will not be deemed to be concluded until such funds or assets have either been distributed or paid into the Companies' liquidation account at the Bank of England (k).

In short, the statement required by section 224 will have to be made by the liquidator unless the final meeting has not been held and the return required by section 195 registered within nine months of the commencement of the winding-up, and even where these things have been done, if at the end of the year the liquidator has in his hands or under his control assets or funds of the company which have not been distributed or paid into the company's liquidation account. It is thought that section 194 (2) ceases to be applicable after the final meeting has been held (l).

(3) For the purpose of the provisions of this Act relating to colonial registers the term "colony" includes British India and the Commonwealth of Australia.

Regulations as to colonial register.

35.—(1) A colonial register shall be deemed to be part of the company's register of members (in this and the next following section called the principal register).

(2) It shall be kept in the same manner in which the principal register is by this Act required to be kept, except that the advertisement before closing the register shall be inserted in some newspaper circulating in the district wherein the colonial register is kept, and that any competent court in the colony may exercise the same jurisdiction of rectifying the register as is under this Act exerciseable by the High Court, and that the offences of refusing inspection or copies of a colonial register, and of authorising or permitting the refusal may be prosecuted summarily before any tribunal in the colony having summary criminal jurisdiction.

(4) The bearer of a share warrant may, if the articles of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Act, either to the full extent or for any purposes defined in the articles; except that he shall not be qualified in respect of the shares or stock specified in the warrant for being a director or manager of the company, in cases where such a qualification is required by the articles.

(5) On the issue of a share warrant the company shall strike out of its register of members the name of the member then entered therein as holding the shares or stock specified in the warrant as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars, namely:—

(i) The fact of the issue of the warrant;

(ii) A statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number; and

(iii) The date of the issue of the warrant.

(6) Until the warrant is surrendered, the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars required by this Act to be entered in the register of members; and, on the surrender, the date of the surrender must be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a member.

(3) Pay dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others.

Power to return accumulated profits in reduction of paid-up share capital.

40.—(1) When a company has accumulated a sum of undivided profits, which with the sanction of the shareholders may be distributed among the shareholders in the form of a dividend or bonus, it may, by special resolution, return the same, or any part thereof, to the shareholders in reduction of the paid-up capital of the company, the unpaid capital being thereby increased by a similar amount.

(2) The resolution shall not take effect until a memorandum, showing the particulars required by this Act in the case of a reduction of share capital, has been produced to and registered by the registrar of companies, but the other provisions of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital shall not apply to a reduction of paid-up share capital under this section.

(3) On a reduction of paid-up capital in pursuance of this section any shareholder, or any one or more of several joint shareholders, may within one month after the passing of the resolution for the reduction, require the company to retain, and the company shall retain accordingly, the whole of the money actually paid on the shares held by him either alone or jointly with any other person, which, in consequence of the reduction, would otherwise be returned to him or them, and thereupon those shares shall, as regards the payment of dividend, be deemed to be paid up to the same extent only as the shares on which payment has been accepted by the shareholders in reduction of paid-up capital, and the company shall invest and keep invested the money so retained in such securities authorised for investment by trustees as the company may determine, and on the money so invested or on so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of calls subsequently made on the shares in respect of which it has been retained, the company shall pay the interest received from time to time on the securities.

(4) The amount retained and invested shall be held to represent the future calls which may be made to replace the share capital so reduced on those shares, whether the amount obtained on sale of the whole or such proportion thereof as represents the amount of any call when made produces more or less than the amount of the call.

(5) On a reduction of paid-up share capital in pursuance of this section, the powers vested in the directors of making calls on shareholders in respect of the amount unpaid on their shares shall extend to the amount of the unpaid share capital as augmented by the reduction.

(6) After any reduction of share capital under this section the company shall specify in the annual list of members required by this

Act the amounts retained at the request of any of the shareholders in pursuance of this section, and shall specify in the statements of account laid before any general meeting of the company the amount of undivided profits returned in reduction of paid-up share capital under this section.

(c) convert all or any of its paid-up shares into stock, and reconvert that stock into paid-up shares of any denomination;

(d) subdivide its shares, or any of them, into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum, so, however, that in the subdivision the proportion between the amount paid and the amount, if any, unpaid on each reduced share shall be the same as it was in the case of the share from which the reduced share is derived;

(e) cancel shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution in that behalf, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person, and diminish the amount of its share capital by the amount of the shares so cancelled.

(2) The powers conferred by this section with respect to subdivision of shares must be exercised by special resolution.

(3) Where any alteration has been made under this section in the memorandum of a company, every copy of the memorandum issued after the date of the alteration shall be in accordance with the alteration.

If a company makes default in complying with this provision it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

(4) A cancellation of shares in pursuance of this section shall not be deemed to be a reduction of share capital within the meaning of this Act.

Notice to registrar of consolidation of share capital, conversion of shares into stock, &c.

42. Where a company having a share capital has consolidated and divided its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares, or converted any of its shares into stock, or reconverted stock into shares, it shall give notice to the registrar of companies of the consolidation, division, conversion, or reconversion specifying the shares consolidated, divided, or converted, or the stock reconverted.

Effect of conversion of shares into stock.

43. Where a company having a share capital has converted any of its shares into stock, and given notice of the conversion to the registrar of companies, all the provisions of this Act which are applicable to shares only shall cease as to so much of the share capital as is converted into stock; and the register of members of the company, and the list of members to be forwarded to the registrar, shall show the amount of stock held by each member instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating to shares hereinbefore required by this Act.

Notice of increase of share capital or of members.

44.—(1) Where a company having a share capital, whether its shares have or have not been converted into stock, has increased its share capital beyond the registered capital, and where a company not having a share capital has increased the number of its members beyond the registered number, it shall give to the registrar of companies, in the case of an increase of share capital within fifteen days after the passing, or in the case of a special resolution the confirmation, of the resolution authorising the increase, and in the case of an increase of members within fifteen days after the increase was resolved on or took place, notice of the increase of capital or members, and the registrar shall record the increase.

A.D. 1908.

Reorganisation of share capital.

45.—(1) A company limited by shares may, by special resolution confirmed by an order of the Court, modify the conditions, contained in its memorandum so as to reorganise its share capital, whether by the consolidation of shares of different classes or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes:

Provided that no preference or special privilege attached to or belonging to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by a resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class and confirmed at a meeting of shareholders of that class in the same manner as a special resolution of the company is required to be confirmed, and every resolution so passed shall bind all shareholders of the class.

(2) Where an order is made under this section an office copy thereof shall be filed with the registrar of companies within seven days after the making of the order, or within such further time as the court may allow, and the resolution shall not take effect until such a copy has been so filed.

Reduction of Share Capital.

Special resolution for reduction of share capital.

46.—(1) Subject to confirmation by the court, a company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may by special resolution reduce its share capital in any way, and in particular (without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power) may—

(b) Either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, cancel any paid-up share capital which is lost or unrepresented by available assets; or

(c) Either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, pay off any paid-up share capital which is in excess of the wants of the company, and may, if and so far as is necessary, alter its memorandum by reducing the amount of its share capital and of its shares accordingly.

(2) A special resolution under this section is in this Act called a resolution for reducing share capital.

Application to court for confirming order.

47. Where a company has passed and confirmed a resolution for reducing share capital it may apply by petition to the court for an order confirming the reduction.

Addition to name of company of "and reduced."

48. On and from the confirmation by a company of a resolution for reducing share capital, or where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, then on and from the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction, the company shall add to its name, until such date as the court may fix, the words "and reduced," as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until that date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company:

Provided that, where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, the court may, if it thinks expedient, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced."

Objections by creditors, and settlement of list of objecting creditors.

49.—(1) Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case if the court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction.

(2) The court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction.

(3) Where a creditor entered on the list whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the court may direct, the following amount; (that is to say,)—

(i) If the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or, though not admitting it, is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim;

(ii) If the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then an amount fixed by the court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the court.

Order confirming reduction.

50. The court, if satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who under this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

Registration of order and minute of reduction.

51.—(1) The registrar of companies on production to him of an order of the court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the court), showing with respect to the share capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of the share capital, the number of shares into which it is to be divided, and the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute.

(2) On the registration, and not before, the resolution for reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect.

(3) Notice of the registration shall be published in such manner as the court may direct.

(4) The registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital have been complied with, and that the share capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

Minute to form part of memorandum.

52.—(1) The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of the company, and shall be valid and alterable as if it had been originally contained therein; and must be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

Liability of members in respect of reduced shares.

53. A member of the company, past or present, shall not be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount paid, or (as the case may be) the reduced amount, if any, which is to be deemed to have been paid, on the share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute:

Provided that if any creditor, entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of share capital, is, by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and, after the reduction, the company is unable, within the meaning of the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up by the court, to pay the amount of his debt or claim, then—

(i) every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration; and

(ii) if the company is wound up, the court, on the application of any such creditor, and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid may, if it thinks fit, settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding up.

Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the contributories among themselves.

Penalty on concealment of name of creditor.

54. If any director, manager, or officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor entitled to object to the reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor, or if any director or manager of the company aids or abets in or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

Publication of reasons for reduction.

55. In any case of reduction of share capital, the court may require the company to publish as the court directs the reasons for reduction, or such other information in regard thereto as the court may think expedient with a view to give proper information to the public, and, if the court thinks fit, the causes which led to the reduction.

Increase and reduction of share capital in case of a company limited by guarantee having a share capital.

56. A company limited by guarantee and registered on or after the first day of January nineteen hundred and one, may, if it has a share capital, and is so authorised by its articles, increase or reduce its share capital in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which a company limited by shares may increase or reduce its share capital under the provisions of this Act.

Registration of Unlimited Company as Limited.

Registration of unlimited company as limited.

57.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, any company registered as unlimited may register under this Act as limited, or any company already registered as a limited company, may re-register under this Act, but the registration of an unlimited company as a limited company shall not affect any debts, liabilities, obligations, or contracts incurred or entered into by, to, with, or on behalf of the company before the registration, and those debts, liabilities, obligations, and contracts may be enforced in manner provided by Part VII. of this Act in the case of a company registered in pursuance of that Part.

(2) On registration in pursuance of this section the registrar shall close the former registration of the company, and may dispense with the delivery to him of copies of any documents with copies of which he was furnished on the occasion of the original registration of the company, but, save as aforesaid, the registration shall take place in the same manner and shall have effect as if it were the first registration of the company under this Act, and as if the provisions of the Acts under which the company was previously registered and regulated had been contained in different Acts of Parliament from those under which the company is registered as a limited company.

Power of unlimited company to provide for reserve share capital on re-registration.

58. An unlimited company having a share capital may, by its resolution for registration as a limited company in pursuance of this Act, do either or both of the following things, namely:—

(a) Increase the nominal amount of its share capital by increasing the nominal amount of each of its shares, but subject to the condition that no part of the increased capital shall be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up;

(b) Provide that a specified portion of its uncalled share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up.

(3) If any director, manager, or proposer makes default in adding such a statement, or if any promoter, director, manager, or secretary makes default in giving such a notice, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and shall also be liable for any damage which the person so elected or appointed may sustain from the default, but the liability of the person elected or appointed shall not be affected by the default.

Special resolution of limited company making liability of directors unlimited.

61.—(1) A limited company, if so authorised by its articles, may, by special resolution, alter its memorandum so as to render unlimited the liability of its directors, or managers, or of any managing director.

(3) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made; and every director or manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

(2) If a limited company does not paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name in manner directed by this Act, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for not so painting or affixing its name, and for every day during which its name is not so kept painted or affixed, and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

(4) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of forty days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to them without interest, and, if any such money is not so repaid within forty-eight days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the expiration of the forty-eighth day:

86.—(1) An allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the provisions of the last foregoing section shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company and not later, and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up.

(2) If any director of a company knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of any of the provisions of the last foregoing section with respect to allotment he shall be liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages, or costs which the company or the allottee may have sustained or incurred thereby: Provided that proceedings to recover any such loss, damages, or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment.

(c) there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statutory declaration by the secretary or one of the directors, in the prescribed form, that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with; and

(d) in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statement in lieu of prospectus.

Provided that in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares the registrar shall not give such a certificate unless a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with him.

(3) Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the simultaneous offer for subscription or allotment of any shares and debentures or the receipt of any money payable on application for debentures.

(5) If any company commences business or exercises borrowing powers in contravention of this section, every person who is responsible for the contravention shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the contravention continues.

(2) Where such a contract as above mentioned is not reduced to writing, the company shall within one month after the allotment file with the registrar of companies the prescribed particulars of the contract stamped with the same stamp duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing, and those particulars shall be deemed to be an instrument within the meaning of the Stamp Act, 1891, and the registrar may, as a condition of filing the particulars, require that the duty payable thereon be adjudicated under section twelve of that Act.

54 & 55 Vict. c. 39.

(3) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company, who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the default continues :

Provided that, in case of default in filing with the registrar of companies within one month after the allotment any document required to be filed by this section, the company, or any person liable for the default, may apply to the court for relief, and the court, if satisfied that the omission to file the document was accidental or due to inadvertence or that it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order extending the time for the filing of the document for such period as the court may think proper.

(2) Save as aforesaid, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money either directly or indirectly in payment of any commission, discount, or allowance, to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, whether the shares or money be so applied by being added to the purchase money of any property acquired by the company or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money be paid out of the nominal purchase money or contract price, or otherwise.

Provided that—

(1) No such payment shall be made unless the same is authorised by the articles or by special resolution:

(2) No such payment, whether authorised by the articles or by special resolution, shall be made without the previous sanction of the Board of Trade:

(7) It shall be the duty of the company to send to the registrar for registration the particulars of every mortgage or charge created by the company and of the issues of debentures of a series, requiring registration under this section, but registration of any such Debentures and Floating Charges.

Perpetual debentures.

103. A condition contained in any debentures or in any deed for securing any debentures, whether issued or executed before or after the passing of this Act, shall not be invalid by reason only that thereby the debentures are made irredeemable or redeemable only on the happening of a contingency, however remote, or on the expiration of a period, however long, any rule of equity to the contrary notwithstanding.

Power to re-issue redeemed debentures in certain cases.

104.—(1) Where either before or after the passing of this Act a company has redeemed any debentures previously issued, the company, unless the articles or the conditions of issue expressly otherwise provide, or unless the debentures have been redeemed in pursuance of any obligation on the company so to do (not being an obligation enforceable only by the person to whom the redeemed debentures were issued or his assigns), shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to keep the debentures alive for the purposes of re-issue, and where a company has purported to exercise such a power the company shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to re-issue the debentures either by re-issuing the same debentures or by issuing other debentures in their place, and upon such a re-issue the person entitled to the debentures shall have, and shall be deemed always to have had, the same rights and priorities as if the debentures had not previously been issued.

(2) Where with the object of keeping debentures alive for the purpose of re-issue they have either before or after the passing of this Act been transferred to a nominee of the company, a transfer from that nominee shall be deemed to be a re-issue for the purposes of this section.

(3) Where a company has either before or after the passing of this Act deposited any of its debentures to secure advances from time to time on current account or otherwise, the debentures shall not be deemed to have been redeemed by reason only of the account of the Company having ceased to be in debit whilst the debentures remained so deposited.

(4) The re-issue of a debenture or the issue of another debenture in its place under the power by this section given to, or deemed to have been possessed by, a company, whether the re-issue or issue was made before or after the passing of this Act, shall be treated as the issue of a new debenture for the purposes of stamp duty, but it shall not be so treated for the purposes of any provision limiting the amount or number of debentures to be issued:

Provided that any person lending money on the security of a debenture reissued under this section which appears to be duly stamped may give the debenture in evidence in any proceedings for enforcing his security without payment of the stamp duty or any penalty in respect thereof, unless he had notice or, but for his negligence, might have discovered, that the debenture was not duly stamped, but in any such case the company shall be liable to pay the proper stamp duty and penalty.

(5) Nothing in this section shall prejudice—

(a) the operation of any judgment or order of a court of competent jurisdiction pronounced or made before the seventh day of March nineteen hundred and seven as between the parties to the proceedings in which the judgment was pronounced or the order made, and any appeal from any such judgment or order shall be decided as if this Act had not been passed; or

107.—(1) Where, in the case of a company registered in England or Ireland, either a receiver is appointed on behalf of the holders of any debentures of the company secured by a floating charge, or possession is taken by or on behalf of those debenture holders of any property comprised in or subject to the charge, then, if the company is not at the time in course of being wound up, the debts which in every winding-up are under the provisions of Part IV. of this Act relating to preferential payments to be paid in priority to all other debts, shall be paid forthwith out of any assets coming to the hands of the receiver or other person taking possession as aforesaid in priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of the debentures.

(2) The periods of time mentioned in the said provisions of Part IV. of this Act shall be reckoned from the date of the appointment of the receiver or of possession being taken as aforesaid, as the case may be.

(3) Any payments made under this section shall be recouped as far as may be out of the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors.

Provided that if, after notice of the intention to nominate an auditor has been so given, an annual general meeting is called for a date fourteen days or less after the notice has been given, the notice, though not given within the time required by this provision, shall be deemed to have been properly given for the purposes thereof, and the notice to be sent or given by the company may, instead of being sent or given within the time required by this provision, be sent or given at the same time as the notice of the annual general meeting.

(5) The first auditors of the company may be appointed by the directors before the statutory meeting, and if so appointed shall hold office until the first annual general meeting, unless previously removed by a resolution of the shareholders in general meeting, in which case the shareholders at that meeting may appoint auditors.

(a) whether or not they have obtained all the information and explanations they have required; and

(b) whether, in their opinion, the balance sheet referred to in the report is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs according to the best of their information and the explanations given to them, and as shown by the books of the company.

(3) The balance sheet shall be signed on behalf of the board by two of the directors of the company, or if there is only one director, by that director, and the auditors' report shall be attached to the balance sheet, or there shall be inserted at the foot of the balance sheet a reference to the report, and the report shall be read before the company in general meeting, and shall be open to inspection by any shareholder.

Any shareholder shall be entitled to be furnished with a copy of the balance sheet and auditors' report at a charge not exceeding sixpence for every hundred words.

(4) If any copy of a balance sheet which has not been signed as required by this section is issued, circulated, or published, or if any copy of a balance sheet is issued, circulated, or published without either having a copy of the auditors' report attached thereto or containing such reference to that report as is required by this section, the company, and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default, shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(5) In the case of a banking company registered after the fifteenth day of August eighteen hundred and seventy-nine—or any proceedings in the winding up may at any time and at any stage, and either with or without application from any of the parties thereto, be transferred from one court to another court, or may be retained in the court in which the proceedings were commenced, although it may not be the court in which they ought to have been commenced.

(2) The powers of transfer given by the foregoing provisions of this section may, subject to and in accordance with general rules, be exercised by the Lord Chancellor or by any judge of the High Court having jurisdiction under this Act, or, as regards any case within the jurisdiction of any other court, by the judge of that court.

(3) If any question arises in any winding-up proceeding in a county court which all the parties to the proceeding, or which one of them and the judge of the court, desire to have determined in the first instance in the High Court, the judge shall state the facts in the form of a special case for the opinion of the High Court, and thereupon the special case and the proceedings, or such of them as may be required, shall be transmitted to the High Court for the purposes of the determination.

Jurisdiction to wind up companies in Ireland.

134. The court having jurisdiction to wind up companies registered in Ireland shall be the High Court:

Provided that where the High Court in Ireland makes an order for winding up a company it may, if it thinks fit, direct that all subsequent proceedings in the winding up be had in the court of bankruptcy having jurisdiction in the place in which the registered office of the company is situate; and thereupon those proceedings shall be taken in that court of bankruptcy accordingly, and that court shall, for the purposes of the winding up, have all the powers of the High Court in Ireland.

Jurisdiction to wind up companies in Scotland.

135. The court having jurisdiction to wind up companies registered in Scotland shall be the Court of Session in either division thereof, or, in the event of a remit to a permanent Lord Ordinary, that Lord Ordinary during session, and in time of vacation the Lord Ordinary on the bills.

Power in Scotland to remit winding up to Lord Ordinary.

136. Where the court in Scotland makes a winding-up order, it may, if it thinks fit, at any time direct all subsequent proceedings in the winding up to be taken before one of the permanent Lords Ordinary, and remit the winding up to him accordingly, and thereupon that Lord Ordinary shall, for the purposes of the winding up, have all the powers and jurisdiction of the court:

Provided that the Lord Ordinary may report to the division of the court any matter which may arise in the course of the winding up.

Provisions as to applications for winding up.

137.—(1) An application to the court for the winding up of a company shall be by petition, presented subject to the provisions of this section either by the company, or by any creditor or creditors (including any contingent or prospective creditor or creditors), contributory or contributories, or by all or any of those parties, together or separately: Provided that

(a) A contributory shall not be entitled to present a petition for winding up a company unless—

(i) either the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or, in the case of any other company, below seven; or

(ii) the shares in respect of which he is a contributory, or some of them, either were originally allotted to him or have been held by him, and registered in his name, for at least six months during the eighteen months before the commencement of the winding up, or have devolved on him through the death of a former holder; and

(b) A petition for winding up a company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting shall not be presented by any person except a shareholder, nor before the expiration of fourteen days after the last day on which the meeting ought to have been held; and

(c) The court shall not give a hearing to a petition for winding up a company by a contingent or prospective creditor until such security for costs has been given as the court thinks reasonable and until a primâ facie case for winding up has been established to the satisfaction of the court.

(2) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily or subject to supervision in England, a petition may be presented by the official receiver attached to the court, as well as by any other person authorised in that behalf under the other provisions of this section, but the court shall not make a winding-up order on the petition unless it is satisfied that the voluntary winding up or winding up subject to supervision cannot be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors or contributories.

(3) Where under the provisions of this Part of this Act any person as being the husband of a female contributory is himself a contributory, and a share has during the whole or any part of the six months been held by or registered in the name of the wife, or by or in the name of a trustee for the wife or for the husband, the share shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to have been held by and registered in the name of the husband.

139. A winding up of a company by the court shall be deemed to commence at the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding up.

Power to stay or restrain proceedings against company.

140. At any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up, and before a winding-up order has been made, the company, or any creditor or contributory, may—

(a) where any action or proceeding against the company is pending in the High Court or Court of Appeal in England or Ireland, apply to the court in which the action or proceeding is pending for a stay of proceedings therein; and

(b) where any other action or proceeding is pending against the company, apply to the court having jurisdiction to wind up the company to restrain further proceedings in the action or proceeding; and the court to which application is so made may, as the case may be, stay or restrain the proceedings accordingly on such terms as it thinks fit.

Powers of court on hearing petition.

141.—(1) On hearing the petition the court may dismiss it with or without costs, or adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make any interim order, or any other order that it deems just, but the court shall not refuse to make a winding-up order on the ground only that the assets of the company have been mortgaged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets, or that the company has no assets.

(2) Where the petition is presented on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the court may order the costs to be paid by any persons who, in the opinion of the court, are responsible for the default.

Actions stayed on winding-up order.

142. When a winding-up order has been made, no action or proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the court, and subject to such terms as the court may impose.

(3) The statement shall be submitted within fourteen days from the date of the order, or within such extended time as the official receiver or the court may for special reasons appoint.

(4) Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section shall be allowed, and shall be paid by the official receiver, out of the assets of the company, such costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and making of the statement and affidavit as the official receiver may consider reasonable, subject to an appeal to the court.

(c) When a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator he shall not be capable of acting as liquidator until he has notified his appointment to the registrar of companies and given security in the prescribed manner to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade.

(4) If more than one liquidator is appointed by the court, the court shall declare whether any act by this Act required or authorised to be done by the liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of the persons appointed.

(5) In a winding up in Scotland or Ireland the court may determine whether any and what security is to be given by a liquidator on his appointment.

(6) A liquidator appointed by the court may resign or, on cause shown, be removed by the court.

(7) A vacancy in the office of a liquidator appointed by the court shall be filled by the court.

In a winding up in England the official receiver shall by virtue of his office be the liquidator during the vacancy.

(d) To draw, accept, make, and indorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, with the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if the bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of its business:

(g) To do all such other things as may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

(3) The exercise by the liquidator in a winding up by the court in England of the powers conferred by this section shall be subject to the control of the court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of those powers.

(4) In the case of a winding up in Scotland or Ireland the court may provide by any order that the liquidator may exercise any of the above powers, except the power to appoint a solicitor or law agent, without the sanction or intervention of the court.

(a) determining whether or not an application is to be made to the court for appointing a liquidator in the place of the official receiver; and

(b) determining whether or not an application is to be made to the court for the appointment of a committee of inspection to act with the liquidator, and who are to be the members of the committee if appointed.

(2) The court may make any appointment and order required to give effect to any such determination, and, if there is a difference between the determinations of the meetings of the creditors and contributories in respect of any of the matters mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this section, the court shall decide the difference and make such order thereon as the court may think fit.

(3) In case a liquidator is not appointed by the court the official receiver shall be the liquidator of the company.

Liquidator to give information to official receiver.

153. Where in the winding up of a company by the court in England a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator he shall give the official receiver such information and such access to and facilities for inspecting the books and documents of the company, and generally such aid as may be requisite for enabling that officer to perform his duties under this Act.

Payments of liquidator in English winding up into bank.

154.—(1) Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England shall, in such manner and at such times as the Board of Trade, with the concurrence of the Treasury, direct, pay the money received by him to the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England, and the Board shall furnish him with a certificate of receipt of the money so paid:

Provided that, if the committee of inspection satisfy the Board of Trade that for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company or of obtaining advances, or for any other reason, it is for the advantage of the creditors or contributories that the liquidator should have an account with any other bank, the Board shall, on the application of the committee of inspection, authorise the liquidator to make his payments into and out of such other bank as the committee may select, and thereupon those payments shall be made in the prescribed manner.

(2) If any such liquidator at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding fifty pounds, or such other amount as the Board of Trade in any particular case authorise him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Board, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per cent. per annum, and shall be liable to disallowance of all or such part of his remuneration as the Board may think just, and to be removed from his office by the Board, and shall be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default.

Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books in which he shall cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory may, subject to the control of the court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books.

Release of liquidators in England.

157.—(1) When the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England has realised all the property of the company, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realised without needlessly protracting the liquidation, and has distributed a final dividend, if any, to the creditors, and adjusted the rights of the contributories among themselves, and made a final return, if any, to the contributories, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Board of Trade shall, on his application, cause a report on his accounts to be prepared, and, on his complying with all the requirements of the Board, shall take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor, or contributory, or person interested against the release of the liquidator, and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly, subject nevertheless to an appeal to the High Court.

(2) Where the release of a liquidator is withheld the court may, on the application of any creditor, or contributory, or person interested, make such order as it thinks just, charging the liquidator with the consequences of any act or default which he may have done or made contrary to his duty.

(3) An order of the Board of Trade releasing the liquidator shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the company, or otherwise in relation to his conduct as liquidator, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact.

(4) Where the liquidator has not previously resigned or been removed, his release shall operate as a removal of him from his office.

Exercise and control of liquidator's powers in England.

158.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England shall, in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting, or by the committee of inspection, and any directions given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting shall in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection.

(2) The liquidator may summon general meetings of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution, either at the meeting appointing the liquidator or otherwise, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one tenth in value of the creditors or contributories as the case may be.

(3) The liquidator may apply to the court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the winding up.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

(5) If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the liquidator, that person may apply to the court, and the court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order in the premises as it thinks just.

Control of Board of Trade over liquidators in England.

159.—(1) The Board of Trade shall take cognizance of the conduct of liquidators of companies which are being wound up by the court in England, and, if a liquidator does not faithfully perform his duties and duly observe all the requirements imposed on him by statute, rules, or otherwise with respect to the performance of his duties, or if any complaint is made to the Board by any creditor or contributory in regard thereto, the Board shall inquire into the matter, and take such action thereon as they may think expedient.

(2) The Board may at any time require any liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England to answer any inquiry in relation to any winding up in which he is engaged, and may, if the Board think fit, apply to the court to examine him or any other person on oath concerning the winding up.

(3) The Board may also direct a local investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the liquidator.

(2) The committee shall meet at such times as they from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary.

(3) The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present.

(4) Any member of the committee may resign by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the liquidator.

(5) If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories, as the case may be, his office shall thereupon become vacant.

(6) Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at a meeting of creditors (if he represents creditors), or of contributories (if he represents contributories) of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting.

(7) On a vacancy occurring in the committee the liquidator shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of contributories, as the case may require, to fill the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint another creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy.

(8) The continuing members of the committee, if not less than two, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in the committee.

(2) The court in making such an order may, in the case of an unlimited company, allow to the contributory by way of set-off any money due to him or to the estate which he represents from the company on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any money due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit; and may, in the case of a limited company, make to any director or manager whose liability is unlimited or to his estate the like allowance.

(3) On any such application the court may make an order either for the removal of the liquidator appointed by the company and for the appointment of some other person as liquidator or for the appointment of some other person to act as liquidator jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company, or for the appointment of a committee of inspection either together with or without any such appointment of a liquidator or such other order as, having regard to the interests of the creditors and contributories of the company, may seem just.

(4) No appeal shall lie from any order of the court upon an application under this section.

(5) The court shall make such order as to the costs of the application as it may think fit, and if it is of opinion that, having regard to

(2) Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the transferor company.

(3) If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution at either of the meetings held for passing and confirming the same expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator, and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the confirmation of the resolution, he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect, or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner provided by this section.

(4) If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

Registrar may strike defunct company off register.

242.—(1) Where the registrar of companies has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation.

(2) If the registrar does not within one month of sending the letter receive any answer thereto, he shall within fourteen days after the expiration of the month send to the company by post a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received, and that if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register.

(7) A letter or notice under this section may be addressed to the company at its registered office, or, if no office has been registered, to the care of some director or officer of the company,

FIRST SCHEDULE.

Sections 10, 11, 67, 263, 285.

TABLE A.

REGULATIONS FOR MANAGEMENT OF A COMPANY LIMITED BY SHARES.

Preliminary.

1. In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, expressions defined in the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof in force at the date at which these regulations become binding on the company, shall have the meanings so defined; and words importing the singular shall include the plural, and vice versâ, and words importing the masculine gender shall include females, and words importing persons shall include bodies corporate.

Business.

2. The directors shall have regard to the restrictions on the commencement of business imposed by section eighty-seven of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, if, and so far as, those restrictions are binding upon the company.

Shares.

3. Subject to the provisions, if any, in that behalf of the memorandum of association of the company, and without prejudice to any special rights previously conferred on the holders of existing shares in the company, any share in the company may be issued with such preferred, deferred, or other special rights, or such restrictions, whether in regard to dividend, voting, return of share capital, or otherwise, as the company may from time to time by special resolution determine.

4. If at any time the share capital is divided into different classes of shares, the rights attached to any class (unless otherwise provided by the terms of issue of the shares of that class) may be varied with the consent in writing of the holders of three-fourths of the issued shares of that class, or with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of the shares of the class. To every such separate general meeting the provisions of these regulations relating to general meetings shall mutatis mutandis apply, but so that the necessary quorum shall be two persons at least holding or representing by proxy one-third of the issued shares of the class.

5. No share shall be offered to the public for subscription except upon the terms that the amount payable on application shall be at least five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share; and the directors shall, as regards any allotment of shares, duly comply with such of the provisions of sections eighty-five and eighty-eight of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as may be applicable thereto.

6. Every person whose name is entered as a member in the register of members shall, without payment, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the company specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid up thereon, provided that in respect of a share or shares held jointly by several persons the company shall not be bound to issue more than one certificate, and delivery of a certificate for a share to one of several joint holders shall be sufficient delivery to all.

7. If a share certificate is defaced, lost, or destroyed, it may be renewed on payment of such fee, if any, not exceeding one shilling, and on such terms, if any, as to evidence and indemnity as the directors think fit.

8. No part of the funds of the company shall be employed in the purchase of, or in loans upon the security of, the company's shares.

Lien.

9. The company shall have a lien on every share (not being a fully-paid share) for all moneys (whether presently payable or not) called or payable at a fixed time in respect of that share, and the company shall also have a lien on all shares (other than fully-paid shares) standing registered in the name of a single person, for all moneys presently payable by him or his estate to the company; but the directors may at any time declare any share to be wholly or in part exempt from the provisions of this clause. The company's lien, if any, on a share shall extend to all dividends payable thereon.

10. The company may sell, in such manner as the directors think fit, any shares on which the company has a lien, but no sale shall be made unless some sum in respect of which the lien exists, is presently payable, nor until the expiration of fourteen days after a notice in writing, stating and demanding payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, has been given to the registered holder for the time being of the share, or the person entitled by reason of his death or bankruptcy to the share.

11. The proceeds of the sale shall be applied in payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, and the residue shall (subject to a like lien for sums not presently payable as existed upon the shares prior to the sale) be paid to the person entitled to the shares at the date of the sale. The purchaser shall be registered as the holder of the shares, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor shall his title to the shares be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the sale.

Calls on Shares.

12. The directors may from time to time make calls upon the members in respect of any moneys unpaid on their shares, provided that no call shall exceed one-fourth of the nominal amount of the share, or be payable at less than one month from the last call; and each member shall (subject to receiving at least fourteen days' notice specifying the time or times of payment) pay to the company at the time or times so specified the amount called on his shares.

A.D. 1908.

13. The joint holders of a share shall be jointly and severally liable to pay all calls in respect thereof.

14. If a sum called in respect of a share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the person from whom the sum is due shall pay interest upon the sum at the rate of five pounds per cent. per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment, but the directors shall be at liberty to waive payment of that interest wholly or in part.

15. The provisions of these regulations as to payment of interest shall apply in the case of nonpayment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had become payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

16. The directors may make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders in the amount of calls to be paid and in the times of payment.

17. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any member willing to advance the same all or any part of the moneys uncalled and unpaid upon any shares held by him; and upon all or any of the moneys so advanced may (until the same would, but for such advance, become presently payable) pay interest at such rate (not exceeding, without the sanction of the company in general meeting, six per cent.) as may be agreed upon between the member paying the sum in advance and the directors.

Transfer and Transmission of Shares.

18. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain a holder of the share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register of members in respect thereof.

19. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form, or in any usual or common form which the directors shall approve:

I, A.B. of   in consideration of the sum of £   paid to me by C.D. of   (hereinafter called " the said transferee ") do hereby transfer to the said transferee the share [or shares] numbered   in the undertaking called the   Company Limited, to hold unto the said transferee, his executors, administrators, and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution thereof: and I, the said transferee, do hereby agree to take the said share [or shares] subject to the conditions aforesaid. As witness our hands the   day of   .

Witness to the signatures of, &c.

20. The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares, not being fully-paid shares, to a person of whom they do not approve, and may also decline to register any transfer of shares on which the company has a lien. The directors may also suspend the registration of transfers during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year. The directors may decline to recognise any instrument of transfer unless—

(a) a fee not exceeding two shillings and sixpence is paid to the company in respect thereof, and

(b) the instrument of transfer is accompanied by the certificate of the shares to which it relates, and such other evidence as the directors may reasonably require to show the right of the transferor to make the transfer.

21. The executors or administrators of a deceased sole holder of a share shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share. In the case of a share registered in the names of two or more holders, the survivors or survivor, or the executors or administrators of the deceased survivor, shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share.

22. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member shall, upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the directors, have the right, either to be registered as a member in respect of the share or, instead of being registered himself, to make such transfer of the share as the deceased or bankrupt person could have made; but the directors shall, in either case, have the same right to decline or suspend registration as they would have had in the case of a transfer of the share by the deceased or bankrupt person before the death or bankruptcy.

23. A person becoming entitled to a share by reason of the death or bankruptcy of the holder shall be entitled to the same dividends and other advantages to which he would be entitled if he were the registered holder of the share, except that he shall not, before being registered as a member in respect of the share, be entitled in respect of it to exercise any right conferred by membership in relation to meetings of the company.

Forfeiture of Shares.

24. If a member fails to pay any call or instalment of a call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter during such time as any part of such call or instalment remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring payment of so much of the call or instalment as is unpaid, together with any interest which may have accrued.

25. The notice shall name a further day (not earlier than the expiration of fourteen days from the date of the notice) on or before which the payment required by the notice is to be made, and shall state that in the event of nonpayment at or before the time appointed the shares in respect of which the call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

26. If the requirements of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which the notice has been given may at any time thereafter, before the payment required by the notice has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

27. A forfeited share may be sold or otherwise disposed of on such terms and in such manner as the directors think fit, and at any time before a sale or disposition the forfeiture may be cancelled on such terms as the directors think fit.

28. A person whose shares have been forfeited shall cease to be a member in respect of the forfeited shares, but shall, notwithstanding, remain liable to pay to the company all moneys which, at the date of forfeiture, were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares, but his liability shall cease if and when the company receive payment in full of the nominal amount of the shares.

29. A statutory declaration in writing that the declarant is a director of the company, and that a share in the company has been duly forfeited on a date stated in the declaration, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share, and that declaration, and the receipt of the company for the consideration, if any, given for the share on the sale or disposition thereof shall constitute a good title to the share, and the person to whom the share is sold or disposed of shall be registered as the holder of the share and shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, if any, nor shall his title to the share be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the forfeiture, sale or disposal of the share.

30. The provisions of these regulations as to forfeiture shall apply in the case of nonpayment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had been payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

A.D. 1908.

Conversion of Shares into Stock.

31. The directors may, with the sanction of the company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid-up shares into stock, and may with the like sanction reconvert any stock into paid-up shares of any denomination.

32. The holders of stock may transfer the same, or any part thereof, in the same manner, and subject to the same regulations, as, and subject to which, the shares from which the stock arose might previously to conversion have been transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit; but the directors may from time to time fix the minimum amount of stock transferable, and restrict or forbid the transfer of fractions of that minimum, but the minimum shall not exceed the nominal amount of the shares from which the stock arose.

33. The holders of stock shall, according to the amount of the stock held by them, have the same rights, privileges, and advantages as regards dividends, voting at meetings of the company, and other matters as if they held the shares from which the stock arose, but no such privilege or advantage (except participation in the dividends and profits of the company) shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred that privilege or advantage.

34. Such of the regulations of the company (other than those relating to share warrants) as are applicable to paid-up shares shall apply to stock, and the words "share" and "shareholder" therein shall include "stock" and "stock-holder."

Share Warrants.

35. The company may issue share warrants, and accordingly the directors may in their discretion, with respect to any share which is fully paid up, on application in writing signed by the person registered as holder of the share, and authenticated by such evidence, if any, as the directors may from time to time require as to the identity of the person signing the request, and on receiving the certificate, if any, of the share, and the amount of the stamp duty on the warrant and such fee as the directors may from time to time require, issue under the company's seal a warrant, duly stamped, stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares therein specified, and may provide by coupons, or otherwise for the payment of dividends, or other moneys, on the shares included in the warrant.

36. A share warrant shall entitle the bearer to the shares included in it, and the shares shall be transferred by the delivery of the share warrant, and the provisions of the regulations of the company with respect to transfer and transmission of shares shall not apply thereto.

37. The bearer of a share warrant shall, on surrender of the warrant to the company for cancellation, and on payment of such sum as the directors may from time to time prescribe, be entitled to have his name entered as a member in the register of members in respect of the shares included in the warrant.

38. The bearer of a share warrant may at any time deposit the warrant at the office of the company, and so long as the warrant remains so deposited the depositor shall have the same right of signing a requisition for calling a meeting of the company and of attending and voting and exercising the other privileges of a member at any meeting held after the expiration of two clear days from the time of deposit, as if his name were inserted in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the deposited warrant. Not more than one person shall be recognised as depositor of the share warrant. The company shall, on two days' written notice, return the deposited share warrant to the depositor.

39. Subject as herein otherwise expressly provided no person shall, as bearer of a share warrant, sign a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, or attend, or vote, or exercise any other privilege of a member at a meeting of the company, or be entitled to receive any notices from the company; but the bearer of a share warrant shall be entitled in all other respects to the same privileges and advantages as if he were named in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the warrant, and he shall be a member of the company.

40. The directors may from time to time make rules as to the terms on which (if they shall think fit) a new share warrant or coupon may be issued by way of renewal in case of defacement, loss, or destruction.

Alteration of Capital.

41. The directors may, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, increase the share capital by such sum, to be divided into shares of such amount, as the resolution shall prescribe.

42. Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the resolution sanctioning the increase of share capital, all new shares shall, before issue, be offered to such persons as at the date of the offer are entitled to receive notices from the company of general meetings in proportion, as nearly as the circumstances admit, to the amount of the existing shares to which they are entitled. The offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares offered, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and, after the expiration of that time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the person to whom the offer is made that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company. The directors may likewise so dispose of any new shares which (by reason of the ratio which the new shares bear to shares held by persons entitled to an offer of new shares) cannot, in the opinion of the directors, be conveniently offered under this article.

43. The new shares shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of calls, lien, transfer, transmission, forfeiture, and otherwise as the shares in the original share capital.

44. The company may, by special resolution—

(a) Consolidate and divide its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares:

(b) By subdivision of its existing shares, or any of them, divide the whole, or any part, of its share capital into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum of association, subject, nevertheless, to the provisions of paragraph (d) of subsection (1) of section forty-one of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908:

(c) Cancel any shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person:

(d) Reduce its share capital in any manner and with, and subject to, any incident authorised, and consent required, by law.

General Meetings.

45. The statutory general meeting of the company shall be held within the period required by section sixty-five of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

46. A general meeting shall be held once in every year at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, or, in default, at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs, and at such place, as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting being so held, a general meeting shall be held in the month next following, and may be convened by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be convened by the directors.

47. The above-mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

48. The directors may, whenever they think fit, convene an extraordinary general meeting, and extraordinary general meetings shall also be convened on such requisition, or, in default, may be convened by such requisitionists, as provided by section sixty-six of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. If at any time there are not within the United Kingdom sufficient directors capable of acting to form a quorum, any director or any two members of the company may convene an extraordinary general meeting in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings may be convened by the directors.

Proceedings at General Meeting.

49. Seven days' notice at the least (exclusive of the day on which the notice is served or deemed to be served, but inclusive of the day for which notice is given) specifying the place, the day, and the hour of meeting and, in case of special business, the general nature of that business shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, to such persons as are, under the regulations of the company, entitled to receive such notices from the company; but the non-receipt of the notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

50. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting, with the exception of sanctioning a dividend, the consideration of the accounts, balance-sheets, and the ordinary reports of the directors and auditors, the election of directors and other officers in the place of those retiring by rotation, and the fixing of the remuneration of the auditors.

51. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business; save as herein otherwise provided, three members personally present shall be a quorum.

52. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved; in any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week, at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting a quorum is not present within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting the members present shall be a quorum.

53. The chairman, if any, of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

54. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting or is unwilling to act as chairman, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

55. The chairman may, with the consent of any meeting at which a quorum is present (and shall if so directed by the meeting), adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place. When a meeting is adjourned for ten days or more, notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given as in the case of an original meeting. Save as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to give any notice of an adjournment or of the business to be transacted at an adjourned meeting.

56. At any general meeting a resolution put to the vote of the meeting shall be decided on a show of hands, unless a poll is (before or on the declaration of the result of the show of hands) demanded by at least three members, and, unless a poll is so demanded, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has, on a show of hands, been carried, or carried unanimously, or by a particular majority, or lost, and an entry to that effect in the book of the proceedings of the company, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of, or against, that resolution.

57. If a poll is duly demanded it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded.

58. In the case of an equality of votes, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, the chairman of the meeting at which the show of hands takes place or at which the poll is demanded, shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

59. A poll demanded on the election of a chairman, or on a question of adjournment, shall be taken forthwith. A poll demanded on any other question shall be taken at such time as the chairman of the meeting directs.

Votes of Members.

60. On a show of hands every member present in person shall have one vote. On a poll every member shall have one vote for each share of which he is the holder.

61. In the case of joint holders the vote of the senior who tenders a vote, whether in person or by proxy, shall be accepted to the exclusion of the votes of the other joint holders; and for this purpose seniority shall be determined by the order in which the names stand in the register of members.

62. A member of unsound mind, or in respect of whom an order has been made by any court having jurisdiction in lunacy, may vote, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, by his committee, curator bonis, or other person in the nature of a committee or curator bonis appointed by that court, and any such committee, curator bonis, or other person may, on a poll, vote by proxy.

63. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls or other sums presently payable by him in respect of shares in the company have been paid.

64. On a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy.

65. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointor or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or, if the appointor is a corporation, either under the common seal, or under the hand of an officer or attorney so authorised. No person shall act as a proxy unless either he is entitled on his own behalf to be present and vote at the meeting at which he acts as proxy, or he has been appointed to act at that meeting as proxy for a corporation.

66. The instrument appointing a proxy and the power of attorney or other authority, if any, under which it is signed or a notarially certified copy of that power or authority shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than forty-eight hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote, and in default the instrument of proxy shall not be treated as valid.

67. An instrument appointing a proxy may be in the following form, or in any other form which the directors shall approve:—

Company, Limited.

"I   of   in the county of   being a member of the   Company, Limited, hereby appoint   of   as my proxy to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary, as the case may be] general meeting of the company to be held on the   day of   and at any adjournment thereof."

Signed this   day of   .

Directors.

68. The number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined in writing by a majority of the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

A.D. 1908.

69. The remuneration of the directors shall from time to time be determined by the company in general meeting.

70. The qualification of a director shall be the holding of at least one share in the company, and it shall be his duty to comply with the provisions of section seventy-three of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Powers and Duties of Directors.

71. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company as are not, by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulation of these articles, to the provisions of the said Act, and to such regulations, being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that regulation had not been made.

72. The directors may from time to time appoint one or more of their body to the office of managing director or manager for such term, and at such remuneration (whether by way of salary, or commission, or participation in profits, or partly in one way and partly in another) as they may think fit, and a director so appointed shall not, while holding that office, be subject to retirement by rotation, or taken into account in determining the rotation of retirement of directors; but his appointment shall be subject to determination ipso facto if he ceases from any cause to be a director, or if the company in general meeting resolve that his tenure of the office of managing director or manager be determined.

73. The amount for the time being remaining undischarged of moneys borrowed or raised by the directors for the purposes of the company (otherwise than by the issue of share capital) shall not at any time exceed the issued share capital of the company without the sanction of the company in general meeting.

74. The directors shall duly comply with the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, and in particular with the provisions in regard to the registration of the particulars of mortgages and charges affecting the property of the company, or created by it, and to keeping a register of the directors, and to sending to the Registrar of Companies an annual list of members, and a summary of particulars relating thereto, and notice of any consolidation or increase of share capital, or conversion of shares into stock, and copies of special resolutions, and a copy of the register of directors and notifications of any changes therein.

75. The directors shall cause minutes to be made in books provided for the purpose—

(a) of all appointments of officers made by the directors;

(b) of the names of the directors present at each meeting of the directors and of any committee of the directors;

(c) of all resolutions and proceedings at all meetings of the company, and of the directors, and of committees of directors, and every director present at any meeting of directors or committee of directors shall sign his name in a book to be kept for that purpose.

The Seal.

76. The seal of the company shall not be affixed to any instrument except by the authority of a resolution of the board of directors, and in the presence of at least two directors and of the secretary or such other person as the directors may appoint for the purpose; and those two directors and secretary or other person as aforesaid shall sign every instrument to which the seal of the company is so affixed in their presence.

Disqualifications of Directors.

77. The office of director shall be vacated, if the director—
   (a) ceases to be a director by virtue of section seventy-three of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908; or (b) holds any other office of profit under the company except that of managing director or manager; or
   (c) becomes bankrupt; or
   (d) is found lunatic or becomes of unsound mind; or (e) is concerned or participates in the profits of any contract with the company:

Provided, however, that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any company which has entered into contracts with or done any work for the company of which he is director; but a director shall not vote in respect of any such contract or work, and if he does so vote his vote shall not be counted.

Rotation of Directors.

78. At the first ordinary meeting of the company the whole of the directors shall retire from office, and at the ordinary meeting in every subsequent year one-third of the directors for the time being, or, if their number is not three or a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third, shall retire from office.

79. The directors to retire in every year shall be those who have been longest in office since their last election, but as between persons who became directors on the same day those to retire shall (unless they otherwise agree among themselves) be determined by lot.

80. A retiring director shall be eligible for re-election.

81. The company at the general meeting at which a director retires in manner aforesaid may fill up the vacated office by electing a person thereto.

82. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors, or such of them as have not had their places filled up, shall be deemed to have been re-elected at the adjourned meeting.

83. The company may from time to time in general meeting increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation the increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

84. Any casual vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled up by the directors, but the person so chosen shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

85. The directors shall have power at any time, and from time to time, to appoint a person as an additional director who shall retire from office at the next following ordinary general meeting, but shall be eligible for election by the company at that meeting as an additional director.

86. The company may by extraordinary resolution remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may by an ordinary resolution appoint another person in his stead; the person so appointed shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

Proceedings of Directors.

87. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate their meetings, as they think fit. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may, and the secretary on the requisition of a director shall, at any time summon a meeting of the directors.

88. The quorum necessary for the transaction of the business of the directors may be fixed by the directors, and unless so fixed shall (when the number of directors exceeds three) be three.

89. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body, but, if and so long as their number is reduced below the number fixed by or pursuant to the regulations of the company as the necessary quorum of directors, the continuing directors may act for the purpose of increasing the number of directors to that number, or of summoning a general meeting of the company, but for no other purpose.

90. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings and determine the period for which he is to hold office ; but, if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

91. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit ; any committee so formed shall in the exercise of the powers so delegated conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

92. A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings : if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the members present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

93. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and in case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

94. All acts done by any meeting of the directors or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends and Reserve.

95. The company in general meeting may declare dividends, but no dividend shall exceed the amount recommended by the directors.

96. The directors may from time to time pay to the members such interim dividends as appear to the directors to be justified by the profits of the company.

97. No dividend shall be paid otherwise than out of profits.

98. Subject to the rights of persons, if any, entitled to shares with special rights as to dividends, all dividends shall be declared and paid according to the amounts paid on the shares, but if and so long as nothing is paid up on any of the shares in the company dividends may be declared and paid according to the amounts of the shares. No amount paid on a share in advance of calls shall, while carrying interest, be treated for the purposes of this article as paid on the share.

99. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the company such sums as they think proper as a reserve or reserves which shall, at the discretion of the directors, be applicable for meeting contingencies, or for equalising dividends, or for any other purpose to which the profits of the company may be properly applied, and pending such application may, at the like discretion, either be employed in the business of the company or be invested in such investments (other than shares of the company) as the directors may from time to time think fit.

100. If several persons are registered as joint holders of any share any one of them may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable on the share.

101. Notice of any dividend that may have deen declared shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned to the persons entitled to share therein.

102. No dividend shall bear interest against the company.

Accounts.

103. The directors shall cause true accounts to be kept—

Of the sums of money received and expended by the company and the matter in respect of which such receipt and expenditure takes place, and

Of the assets and liabilities of the company.

104. The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, or at such other place or places as the directors think fit, and shall always be open to the inspection of the directors.

105. The directors shall from time to time determine whether and to what extent and at what times and places and under what conditions or regulations the accounts and books of the company or any of them shall be open to the inspection of members not being directors, and no member (not being a director) shall have any right of inspecting any account or book or document of the company except as conferred by statute or authorised by the directors or by the company in general meeting.

106. Once at least in every year the directors shall lay before the company in general meeting a profit and loss account for the period since the preceding account or (in the case of the first account) since the incorporation of the company, made up to a date not more than six months before such meeting.

107. A balance sheet shall be made out in every year and laid before the company in general meeting made up to a date not more than six months before such meeting. The balance sheet shall be accompanied by a report of the directors as to the state of the company's affairs, and the amount which they recommend to be paid by way of dividend, and the amount, if any, which they propose to carry to a reserve fund.

108. A copy of the balance sheet and report shall, seven days previously to the meeting, be sent to the persons entitled to receive notices of general meetings in the manner in which notices are to be given hereunder.

Audit.

109. Auditors shall be appointed and their duties regulated in accordance with sections one hundred and twelve and one hundred and thirteen of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force.

Notices.

110. A notice may be given by the company to any member either personally or by sending it by post to him to his registered address, or (if he has no registered address in the United Kingdom) to the address, if any, within the United Kingdom supplied by him to the company for the giving of notices to him.

Where a notice is sent by post, service of the notice shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, prepaying, and posting a letter containing the notice, and unless the contrary is proved to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post.

111. If a member has no registered address in the United Kingdom and has not supplied to the company an address within the United Kingdom for the giving of notices to him, a notice addressed to him and advertised in a newspaper circulating in the neighbourhood of the registered office of the company, shall be deemed to be duly given to him on the day on which the advertisement appears.

112. A notice may be given by the company to the joint holders of a share by giving the notice to the joint holder named first in the register in respect of the share.

113. A notice may be given by the company to the persons entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member by sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to them by name, or by the title of representatives of the deceased, or trustee of the bankrupt, or by any like description, at the address, if any, in the United Kingdom supplied for the purpose by the persons claiming to be so entitled, or (until such an address has been so supplied) by giving the notice in any manner in which the same might have been given if the death or bankruptcy had not occurred.

114. Notice of every general meeting shall be given in some manner hereinbefore authorised to (a) every member of the company (including bearers of share warrants) except those members who (having no registered address within the United Kingdom) have not supplied to the company an address within the United Kingdom for the giving of notices to them, and also to (b) every person entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member, who, but for his death or bankruptcy, would be entitled to receive notice of the meeting. No other persons shall be entitled to receive notices of general meetings.

Costs of appearance.

21. Where a creditor who appears at the hearing under the last preceding Rule is a creditor the full amount of whose debt or claim is not admitted by the company, and the validity of such debt or claim has not been inquired into and adjudicated upon under Section 49 (3) of the Act, the costs of and occasioned by his appearance shall be dealt with as to the Court shall seem just, but in all other cases a creditor appearing under the last preceding Rule shall be entitled to the costs of such appearance, unless the Court shall be of opinion that in the circumstances of the particular case his costs ought not to be allowed.

Directions at the hearing.

22. When the petition comes on to be heard the Court may, if it shall so think fit, give such directions as may seem proper with reference to the securing in manner mentioned in Section 49 (3) of the Act the payment of the debts or claims of any creditors who do not consent to the proposed reduction; and the further hearing of the petition may, if the Court shall think fit, be adjourned for the purpose of allowing any steps to be taken with reference to the securing in manner aforesaid the payment of such debts or claims.

Creditor required to give up security. 136. The Official Receiver or Liquidator may within twenty-eight days after a proof estimating the value of a security as aforesaid has been used in voting at a meeting require the creditor to give up the security for the benefit of the creditors generally on payment of the value so estimated with an addition thereto of twenty per cent. In all other respects the same procedure shall follow the fresh notice as would have followed the original notice.

Forms 68 and 69.

(5.) Upon the declaration of a dividend the Liquidator shall forthwith transmit to the Board of Trade a list of the proofs filed with the Registrar under Rule 110, which list shall be in the Form 68 or 69 in the Appendix as the case may be. any proceedings has occasioned any additional costs which ought not to be borne by the funds of the Company, it may direct such costs, or a gross sum in lieu thereof, to be paid by such person; and such person shall not be entitled to attend any further proceedings until he has paid the same.

(2.) The Court may from time to time appoint any one or more of the creditors or contributories to represent before the Court, at the expense of the Company, all or any class of the creditors or contributories, upon any question or in relation to any proceedings before the Court, and may remove the person so appointed. THE LIMITED PARTNERSHIPS (WINDING-UP) RULES, 1909, DATED MARCH 29, 1909, MADE UNDER SECTION 268 (1) (vii) OF THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908 (8 EDW. 7, c. 69).

The provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, with respect to winding-up, and the provisions of the Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, so far as applicable to the proceedings in a winding-up by the Court (hereinafter called "the applied provisions"), shall apply to the winding-up by the Court of Limited Partnerships subject to the modifications following, that is to say :—

Preliminary.

General interpretation of applied provisions.

1. The following expressions shall, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires, be substituted in the applied provisions and in the forms prescribed by the said Rules for the expressions hereinafter particularly mentioned, that is to say :—

"Limited Partnership" for "Company."

"General Partner" for "Director" and for "Secretary," and for "Secretary or Chief Officer."

"Manager, Clerk, or Servant" for "Officer."

"Partner" for "Member" or "Shareholder."

"Principal place of business as registered" for "registered office."

Definition of "the Act" and "the Court."

2. In these Rules unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires, the expression "the Act" shall mean the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and the expression "the Court" shall mean the Court which has jurisdiction to wind up the limited partnership.

Substitution of Rules as to contributories for certain provisions of Act.

3. For the purposes of the application of Section 124 of the Act, the provisions of these Rules with regard to the liability of partners and others as contributories shall be substituted for the provisions of Section 123 of the Act.

Contribution by partners.

4. In the event of a limited partnership being wound up by the Court every present and past partner, general or limited, shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the limited partnership to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, with the qualifications following, that is to say :—

(1.) No present or past limited partner shall be liable to contribute as such to the assets of the limited partnership to any greater amount than the amount of any part of his contribution as such limited partner which he may have drawn out or received back since he became or whilst he remained a limited partner, except in the case of a present limited partner who is a past general partner and in the case of a past limited partner who has become a present general partner.

(2.) No past general partner shall be liable to contribute as such to the assets of the limited partnership, except in respect of partnership debts and obligations incurred whilst he continued to be a general partner : but every past general partner who has become a limited partner shall in addition to any amount which he may be liable to contribute in respect of partnership debts and obligations incurred whilst he continued to be a general partner be liable to contribute to the assets of the limited partnership to an amount equal to the amount of any part of his contribution as such limited partner which he may have drawn out or received back since he became or whilst he remained a limited partner.

(3.) No past partner, general or limited, shall be liable to contribute as such to the assets of the limited partnership unless it appears to the Court that the existing partners are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Rule.

(4.) No sum due to any partner, general or limited, in his character as a partner, by way of capital, dividends, profits, or otherwise, shall be deemed to be a debt of the limited partnership payable to such partner in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not being a partner but any such sum may be taken into account for the purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves.

Provisions in case of death of contributory in insolvent circumstances.

5. In the event of any contributory dying in insolvent circumstances and of an Order being made for the administration of his estate according to the law of bankruptcy, either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, the trustee (or in Ireland, the assignees) of his estate shall be deemed to represent the deceased for all purposes of the winding-up of the limited partnership and shall be deemed to be a contributory accordingly, and may be called upon to admit to proof against the estate of the deceased or otherwise to allow to be paid out of his assets in due course of law any moneys due from the deceased in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the limited partnership being wound up.

THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908.

REGULATIONS ISSUED BY THE BOARD OF TRADE UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF RULE 215 OF THE COMPANIES (WINDING-UP) RULES, 1909.

1. Remittances to Companies Liquidation Account.—All moneys received by a Liquidator of a Company which is being wound up by order of the Court are required to be paid, without deduction, to the Companies Liquidation Account (unless an account with any other Bank has been authorised by the Board of Trade under section 154 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908,) and remittances are to be made once a week, or forthwith, if a sum of 200*l.* or more has been received. Remittances may be made direct to the Bank of England, Law Courts Branch, by cheque crossed "Bank of England, credit of Companies Liquidation Account."

2. The remittances to the Bank of England should be accompanied by a Receivable Order (Form C. No. 7), and the counterpart or advice letter should be transmitted by the same post to the Accountant-General to the Board of Trade. Halfpence should not be included in remittances. Forms of Receivable Order will be supplied on application to the Comptroller of the Companies Department, 27, Great George Street, Westminster, S.W.

3. By sub-section 3 of section 154 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, a Liquidator is absolutely prohibited from paying any sums received by him as Liquidator into his private banking account, and by sub-section 2 it is enacted that if a Liquidator at any time retains for more then ten days a sum exceeding 50*l.*, or such other amount as the Board of Trade in any particular case authorise him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Board, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of 20*l.* per centum per annum and shall be liable to disallowance of all or such part of his remuneration as the Board may think just, and to be removed from his office by the Board, and shall be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default.

All current Bills of Exchange should be remitted to the Companies Liquidation Account.

4. Special Bank Account.—Where a special Bank Account is sanctioned by the Board of Trade under the provisions of section 154 (1) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, all moneys received must be paid into the appointed Bank. The Pass Book with the special Bank should be forwarded at each audit.

5. Payments made to a Liquidator out of Companies Liquidation Account.—All necessary disbursements made by a Liquidator on account of a Company to the date of his application for release will be repaid to him out of any moneys standing to the credit of the Company in the Companies Liquidation Account on application to the Comptroller (Form C. No. 5).

Any expenses properly incurred by the Liquidator after applying for, but before obtaining, his release, will be repaid to him by the Official Receiver out of any funds available for the purpose.

6. Cheques to the order of the payee for sums which become payable on account of the Company may be obtained by the Liquidator on application by him on Form C. No. 6, for delivery by him to the parties entitled.

7. Under no circumstances will the Board of Trade hold themselves responsible for payments made on the requisition of the Liquidator.

8. The Comptroller will be prepared to certify the balance standing to the credit of a Company in the Companies Liquidation Account, on receiving from the Liquidator a statement of the balance shown by the Bank columns of the Cash Book.

9. Moneys withdrawn from the Bank should not be treated as receipts from realisations, but should appear only in the "Drawn from Bank" column of the Cash Book, the application of the money being entered in the "Payments" column. The payments into the Bank should appear only in the "Paid into Bank" column in the Cash Book.

10. Cancellation of cheques and money orders.—All applications for the cancellation of cheques and money orders should be addressed to the Comptroller and should state the grounds upon which the cancellation is required.

11. Payment of Dividends.—The payment of dividends will in every instance, except where a special Bank Account has been authorised, be made by cheques on the Bank of England, or money orders, which will be prepared by the Board of Trade on the application of the Liquidator, and will be transmitted to him for distribution amongst the Creditors. The application must be in the prescribed form (No. 68), and must be certified by the Registrar of the Court, if the proceedings are in a County Court, and by the Liquidator, if the proceedings are in the High Court, and in the latter case must be accompanied by office copies of the lists of proofs filed (Rule 150 (5)). The Board of Trade will require TEN days' notice to enable them to prepare the cheques or money orders for dividends. Considerable inconvenience and increased labour has been caused by Liquidators transmitting imperfect and inaccurate lists of Creditors, and the Board of Trade request that great care may be exercised in the preparation of them, and that in all cases of payment to executors, Trustees, representative officials, &c., the name or names should be inserted in the list.

The creditors in the lists should be numbered consecutively, so that for the purpose of identification corresponding numbers may be affixed to the cheques and money orders.

The total amount of the dividend payable should be charged in the Cash Book in one sum. If the dividend has been paid by cheques on the Companies Liquidation Account, the Liquidator on the expiration of six months from the date of issue, or on application for his release, if that event occurs earlier, should return any cheques remaining in hand to the Accountant-General to the Board of Trade.

If the dividend is paid through a Special Bank, the Liquidator should, upon the declaration of the dividend, forward to the Comptroller of the Companies Department a certified list of the proofs filed in Form No. 69, together with an office copy of the list of proofs filed if the proceedings are in the High Court, and, at the expiry of six months from the date of the declaration of the dividend, should forward to the Comptroller, for audit, vouchers for the dividends paid and a list of those remaining unclaimed.

The Liquidator will then be furnished with a Receivable Order for payment into the Bank of England of the amount of the dividends unclaimed. Under no circumstances should unclaimed dividends be credited to the Estate without the previous sanction of the Comptroller.

12. Return to Contributories.—Applications for cheques for return to Contributories should be made on Form C. No. 6, which should give the name of each Contributory together with the amount for which he has been settled on the list; and, in cases where the amount payable is under 2*l.*, the place at which the money order should be made payable.

The total amount of each return to Contributories should be entered in the Cash Book in one sum as in the case of dividends.

THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908.

REGULATIONS APPROVED BY THE BOARD OF TRADE AND THE COMMISSIONERS OF INLAND REVENUE AS TO KING'S TAXES ASSESSED ON COMPANIES WOUND UP BY THE COURT.

1. Where a winding-up order is made on or after the 1st December in the year of assessment, or the Official Receiver or Liquidator remains in possession of the premises in respect of which King's Taxes are assessed under a winding-up order made prior to the 1st December, until the 1st January next following, the Collector shall be entitled to prove for the said taxes, viz. :—the Income Tax (Schedule " A "), Inhabited House Duty and Land Tax, assessed on the Company up to the 5th April next following the date of the winding-up order, in the same manner as if such taxes had become due and payable at the date of the winding-up order, and such proof shall rank for dividend.

2. Where a winding-up order is made prior to the 1st December in the year of assessment, the Inland Revenue authorities will make no claim on the Official Receiver or Liquidator for Income Tax (Schedule "A") Inhabited House Duty and Land Tax for the year ending 5th April next following the date of the winding-up order, unless the Official Receiver or Liquidator remains in possession of the premises in respect of which the taxes are assessed until the following 1st January.

3. Where the Official Receiver or Liquidator disposes of a business as a going concern, he will allow to the purchaser the proportion of the Income Tax (Schedule "A") and Land Tax for the current year to the date of the completion of the purchase, and the purchaser will become liable to the Inland Revenue authorities for the taxes in question for the whole year.

4. PROVIDED ALWAYS that nothing in these Regulations shall be deemed to interfere with the right of the Crown to enforce payment of Income Tax (Schedule "A") and Land Tax actually due and payable, by distress levied on the property of the Company. These taxes for the year ending 5th April next following the date of the winding-up order should, therefore, be dealt with on the footing of "secured" debts, and be paid by the Official Receiver or Liquidator on demand without any proof on the part of the Collector, if on or after the 1st January in the year of assessment there are on the premises sufficient goods belonging to the company on which the Collector might levy, and notice of any such claim should be given to the Official Receiver or Liquidator by the Collector forthwith upon the making of the winding-up order. If at such time there are no goods upon which distress can be levied, proof of the debt may be made by the Collector as directed in paragraph 1, and such proof shall, if found correct, be admitted to rank for dividend.

In like manner any Income Tax (Schedule "A") and Land Tax assessed on the Company up to the 5th April next before the date of the winding-up order should be dealt with as secured debts if there are at the time of the Collector's demand sufficient goods on the premises on which he might levy. If there are no such goods proof of the debt may be made by the Collector, and such proof shall, if found correct, be admitted as a preferential claim in so far as it relates to taxes payable in full under section 209 (1) (a) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and as ranking for dividend for any part thereof not so payable in full.

5. Where Income Tax is outstanding under Schedules "B," "D," or "E," the Inland Revenue authorities will, on receipt of an affidavit by the Secretary or other officer of the Company, with a certificate by the Official Receiver or Liquidator, setting out that no income taxable under such Schedule has been made, forego all claim to payment of the tax, whether the same is payable in full under section 209 (1) (a) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or otherwise, but the waiver of claim under this Regulation shall not embrace rents, royalties, interest of money, or annuities, or fees, or salaries, from which deductions have been made on account of Income Tax.

6. In cases where an affidavit by the Secretary or other officer of the Company cannot be obtained, the certificate of the Official Receiver or Liquidator may be accepted as sufficient evidence.
